Ahmednagar . . . . .	No rain	Bajri reaping finished; rabi sowing continued; locusts in Shrigonda cattle-disease in Newasa; bajri —maximum 55 pounds per rupee in Sheegaon, minimum 39 lbs. in Nagar; juari —maximum 72 lbs. in Jambhed, minimum 54 lbs. in Sangamner.
Sholapore . . . . .	No rain	Cholera in Mulikrao taluka, 30 cases, 12 fatal; sowing of rabi completed; juari 63 and bajri 54 pounds per rupee.
Dharwar . . . . .		Rice crops being reaped; reaping of other early crops commenced; sowing of late crops nearly completed; cholera at Madleri in Ranebennur, out of 5 cases, 4 fatal; fever in five and cattle-disease in one taluka; rice 25 to 41 and juari 45 to 88 pounds per rupee.
Kanara . . . . .		Fever in Halliyal and Mundgad; smallpox in Kumpta and Honawar, 9 cases, 1 death in Siddapur; preparing land for cultivating second rice crops on coast; common rice at Karwar 11½, district average 16 seers per rupee.
Rajkot . . . . .		Weather cold; fever continues in some parts; bajri 31 and juari 35 pounds per rupee. General Remarks. —River still falling in Sind; damage from locusts continues in parts of Nasik; kharif harvesting and rabi sowing completed in most districts; fever general; slight cholera and smallpox in seven, and cattle-disease in ten districts.
Bengal—(Nov. 28th)
Chittagong . . . . .	Nil	Yield of rice will not be favourable; earlier sorts of the crop being harvested; prices steady; cattle-disease lingers; public health good.
Dacca . . . . .	Nil	Paddy being cut; sowing of pulses continues; prospects fair, but some damage to crops apprehended for want of rain.
24 Pargunnahs . . . . .	Nil	Prospects of late rice continue unfavourable; average outturn estimated at from eight to ten annas; cultivation of rabi crops much hindered by want of rain; price of common rice varies from 12 to 19 seers per rupee; public health generally good; sporadic cases of cholera reported from the Baraset, Barrackpore, and Dum Dum sub-divisions, and fever prevalent in the Basirhat sub-division.
Mooreshedabad . . . . .	Nil	Weather overcast; harvesting of late rice has commenced; the crop is a total failure, except on irrigated and low-lying lands; cold weather crops have generally suffered from drought, but teel , arhar and kulai are doing fairly well; prices falling slightly; public health good, except in the north, where fever is still prevalent.
Bajshahye . . . . .	Nil	Some of the amun rice being reaped; in Nattore yield will not be good; transplanted paddy will be about a 4-anna crop; paddy on low lands may average 6 annas for the whole district; rabi crops want rain.
Bardwan . . . . .	Nil	State of amun rice and rabi crops bad; sowing of rabi crops partially stopped for want of rain; sugarcane also suffering; public health fair.
Rungpore . . . . .	Nil	Weather seasonable; prospects of amun rice bad, other crops fair; prices stationary; fever prevalent.
Bhagulpore . . . . .	Nil	Rabi sowings still going on, the soil being moistened by irrigation wherever this is possible; prospects of rabi crops not good; a good deal of rice which suffered from drought has been cut as fodder; price of rice 13 seers 14 chittacks per rupee.
Purneah . . . . .	Nil	Prospects of crops not good; rabi sowings going on; price common rice 15 seers per rupee; much fever and a few cases of cholera reported.
Patna . . . . .	Nil	Harvesting of paddy has commenced; rabi germinating well; rain wanted; public health good.
Durbhanga . . . . .	Nil	There will be a six to eight-anna rice crop in the north of the district, but less in the centre, and very little indeed in the south; unless rain falls within the next few days the rabi will be destroyed entirely; prices very high; fever very prevalent, though not in an epidemic form.
Hazareebagh . . . . .	Nil	Weather clear and cold; harvesting of paddy continues; prospects of rabi crops not favourable owing to want of rain; common rice selling at 15 seers per rupee; general health good.
Cuttack . . . . .	Nil	Earlier sorts of sarad rice being cut; later kinds flowering in some places; crops on high lands partially suffering from drought; common rice selling at 20 seers per rupee at Cuttack, and 26 to 35 seers in the interior; public health good. General Remarks. —There has been no rain in any part of the province; the rice crop has to a great extent failed, and will be very poor; the prospects of the rabi crops also are generally reported to be very unfavourable; want of rain is very much felt for the progress of the rabi sowings, and for the growth of the crops already sown; prices are high all over the province; in some districts they are rising still, in some they remain stationary, and in others they are falling slightly; fever, as usual at this season, is prevalent in some districts, otherwise the public health is satisfactory.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week preceding.	State of agricultural prospects.

Rangoon (Nov. 17th)	.	One death from small-pox, otherwise public health good; paddy no supplies; prices nominal.
Hanthawaddy ( " " )	.	Public health and health of cattle good; ploughing and sowing completed; paddy area about 1,720 acres more than last year; rain of past 8 or 10 days has done great good; if no more rain falls fall crop expected; general appearance of crops good; prices of paddy from Rs. 80 to 95 per 100 baskets.
Pegu ( " " )	For week ending 10th Nov. 1.32 For week ending 17th Nov. 3.60	Public health good; cattle-disease slight; scarcely any damage to crops from high winds last week, generally a great improvement on higher lands; prospects unusually good throughout; total rainfall 124 inches.
Tharrawaddy (Nov. 3rd)	0.10	Public health good; two deaths of cattle reported; about 251,608 acres of paddy land have been ploughed and 229,798 acres planted; crops reported in good condition; about 170 acres have been reaped in the Sangwe township, price of paddy from Rs. 95 to 115 per 100 baskets; total rainfall 100.07 inches.
( " 10th)	3	Public health and health of cattle good; slight damage to crops in Gyobingook from floods; paddy area about 22,604 acres more than past year; the later paddy and the crops on high lands suffering in parts from drought, general appearance favourable; price of paddy Rs. 95 to 150 per 100 baskets; total rainfall 103.07 inches.
" ( " 17th)		Report not received.
Prome	4.53	Public health and health of cattle good; ploughed fields all planted out, but the area 1,379 acres less than last year; this decrease is attributed to deficient rainfall on higher lands; heavy rains of week have done some damage to plants in Paungde Sub-division but have on the whole much improved the prospects of crops throughout the district; price of paddy Rs. 85 per 100 baskets; total rainfall 52.69 inches.
Bassein	14.87	Public health good; 17 deaths of cattle, heavy rain of week has irretrievably spoilt the reaped paddy, one-third of planted, and one-fifth of sown; ordinary crops, judging from fields near Bassein, are badly injured, only later crops have benefited; price of paddy Rs. 100 to 120 per 100 baskets; total rainfall 103.64 inches.
Thongwa	6.87	Public health and health of cattle good; slight damage from drought reported from Shwelaung and Paolonaw townships and from wild elephants from Dedaya, price of paddy Rs. 85 to 100 per 100 baskets; total rainfall 94.09 inches.
Heuzada	5.90	Public health and health of cattle good; prospects of crops in Myanung Sub-division much improved; great damage has been caused in Kyangin by floods; rice selling at Rs. 5 a basket; total rainfall 86.63 inches.
Thayetmyo	8.28	Public health good, 56 deaths of cattle; crop mostly in ear; heavy rain of week has prevented much loss; crops will be two-fourths or one-half short; price of paddy Rs. 100 per 100 baskets; total rainfall 47.24 inches.
Amherst	.	Public health and health of cattle good; ripening crops very good; reaping commenced; paddy area estimated to be 20,000 acres more than last year; some damage has been caused by drought and inundation by sea; season's loss has been averted by late rain.
Moulmein town	1.21	Public health and health of cattle good; about 1,315 acres under paddy; about 200 acres have been reaped, output about 5,000 baskets; wages of reaping 8 annas per day, by contract about Rs. 3-4 per acre; condition of ripening paddy good; outlook favourable; opening price of paddy Rs. 88 per 100 baskets; total rainfall 166.28 inches.
Shwegyin	1.30	Public health and health of cattle good; harvest prospects promising; price of paddy Rs. 88 per 100 baskets; total rainfall 139.52 inches.
Tavoy	.65	Public health and health of cattle good; prospects of crops very good; reaping of early paddy progressing; total rainfall 195.44 inches.
Mergui (Nov. 3rd)	1.15	Public health good; crops and cattle healthy; reaping has commenced in some places; but the main portion of the crops is unripe yet; 35 acres destroyed by flood; price of paddy Rs. 80 per 100 baskets; total rainfall 169.79 inches.
" ( " 10th)	1.40	Public health good; cattle healthy; reaping has commenced in some places, but the main portion of the crop is unripe yet; price of paddy Rs. 80 per 100 baskets; total rainfall 171.19 inches.
Toungoo	.61	Public health and health of cattle good; prospects of crops good; total rainfall 9.68 inches.
		General Remarks. —Public health good; no excessive mortality among cattle except in Thayetmyo, where there has been a slight increase of disease; rainfall for the week has been considerably in excess of the fall last year in the same week; all over the provinces and in the four districts of the Irrawaddy Division, the fall has been heavy; Bassein had unprecedentedly heavy rain for this time of the year; the rain has on the whole done great good to the Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week preceding	State of agricultural prospects.

		paddy crop; in Bassein however damage has been caused to some reaped paddy and to a considerable area of standing crop by the excessive rain; the prospects in the chief paddy-producing districts, Hantawaddy, Pegu, Thongwa, Tharrawaddy, and Amherst, are excellent; a larger area is under paddy than last year, and full crops are expected; the prospects in Henzada, which is also a large paddy-growing and exporting district, are good; the rain appears to have come too late in Pegu and Thayetmye to retrieve the loss in crop and deficiency in cropped area caused by the past unseasonable drought; on the whole there is promise of a full crop on a larger area than last year.
Assam— Gauhati (Nov. 28th)	No rain	Weather seasonable; mornings foggy; prospects of sali crops not satisfactory for want of rain; sowing of mustard in progress; public health fair.

PAPERS REGARDING THE SUGGESTED ABOLITION OF THE ENGLISH DUTY ON GOLD AND SILVER PLATE, AND THE SYSTEM OF COMPULSORY HALL-MARKING.

The following papers are published for general information :—

Dated 11th January, 1883.

From—G. HICKIE, Esq., Secretary to the Calcutta Trades' Association,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE.

In the year 1880 an earnest attempt was made in England by those interested in the silversmiths' and goldsmiths' trade to procure the abolition of the English duty on silver plate, and an alteration of the restrictive laws relating to compulsory Hall-marking of silver and gold wares. A petition, presented to the English Parliament by certain artists and designers in metal work, and which is annexed hereto (see Appendix A), clearly sets forth the grievance of which they complain, and shows that the duty of 1s. 6d. an ounce imposed by the English law on all silver wares manufactured for sale in England tends materially to limit the demand for artistic work in silver, and, coupled with the system of compulsory Hall-marking, greatly lessens the consumption of silver as a raw material.

2. As bearing on the same important question, the Committee of the Trades' Association submit herewith a copy of certain resolutions adopted by the Goldsmiths' and Silversmiths' Free Trade Association at a meeting held in London in September 1880 (see Appendix B).

3. It seemed at first that these efforts to procure the repeal of an injurious tax, which, taken in connection with the laws for compulsory Hall-marking, is of a protective character, would be successful, but other considerations ulmately prevailed, and the matter was referred to by Mr. Gladstone in his Budget speech in these words:—

"The next subject is one of very small dimensions indeed, but one which presents very considerable difficulty as well as inducement, and that is the subject of the duties on silver plate. The revenue it produces is no more than about £48,000 a year; but there are two reasons why, if we could, we ought to get rid of it. The first is the general advantage which never fails to attend the removal of Excise duty upon the products of British industry; and there is another special reason, which is, that there is every reason to believe that India is well qualified to supply us with silver wares in a manner advantageous to herself and to the trade and people of this country. These are the reasons in favour of the alteration of the duty, and they are very weighty reasons, but unfortunately there are reasons against the removal of the duty, in the ordinary manner which the House may consider as weighty, or weightier still. When I say 'the ordinary manner,' I mean the immediate removal of the duty. In the first place, in order to get rid of this £48,000 a year, you must not only give up that sum—which you might be willing enough to do—but if you remove this duty immediately which undoubtedly would be the best way of doing it, you must be prepared to meet a claim for drawbacks, which, in the first place, is enormous, in relation to the amount of duty, and totally transcends all the dimensions of ordinary ideas as to the drawbacks on taxable commodities, but which is open to the still greater objection that it is impossible to shut the door against drawbacks in the nature of fraud. When I come to make enquiry as to this drawback, gentlemen of the greatest intelligence and respectability in the trade say they think the drawback might be perfectly well covered by £170,000, or three and a half years' revenue. I have not the smallest doubt as to the perfect good faith of all that proceeds from the leading members of the trade; but it is not in their power, nor in the power of anybody, to assure us that we should not be subject to another demand, perhaps as great, in respect of fraudulent claims. I cannot say what that would be; but, in the whole circumstances we do not see our way to proceed to the removal of this duty by the ordinary form of an immediate removal altogether without a corresponding claim in another direction. I am sorry to say the problem puzzles me, and I can suggest nothing better than that which is, as a rule, not to be resorted to, viz., that the difficulties of this case might very gradually be provided for by such an annual reduction of the duty as would not disturb sensibly the course of trade; and I shall submit to the House a Resolution proposing that instead of 1s. 6d. an ounce, which is the amount now chargeable, the duty shall be reduced annually by three pence an ounce until it expires. The gold duty we do not propose to touch. That is a duty so peculiar that I really do not know how to deal with it under present circumstances; but I do not think there is any such reason for touching the duty of gold as there is for touching the ordinary duty on silver. I make that proposal not as the best thing conceivable, but as being the best that can be done under present circumstances."

4. Subsequently Mr Gladstone moved the omission of the clause relating to the silver duty from the Revenue Bill in the following terms:—

"The Customs and Inland Revenue Bill was in Committee of the House of Commons on May 23rd, and Mr. Gladstone moved the omission of clause 7, dealing with the silver plate duty. On Sir G. Campbell asking why the clause was to be abandoned, Mr. Gladstone said the difficulties attending drawback on this subject were very great—much more serious than he had imagined. He had had considerable doubt as to the validity of the claim for drawback, and specially for full drawback; but under the clause it had not been proposed to give any drawback at all, but to proceed by a gradual method of reduction. Representations which had been made to him induced him to think that he could not persevere with a clause which affected not so much the interests of the trade, so called, as those of the working people. There had been great deadness in the condition of the trade, and he shrank from applying to it any measure which would have had a more or less paralyzing effect. He had been obliged to let the matter stand over at this time, but other communications might yet take place. Mr. Ritchie then suggested that the right honourable gentleman should definitely abandon the clause, as the members of the trade would suffer if it were to be held in terrorem over them, but Mr. Gladstone said he could not give a pledge that, under no circumstances, would the question be reopened. There might arise other modes of dealing with it. Sir A. Lusk then observed that the clock and watch-making trade had entirely gone away from Clerkenwell. The people wanted something to do and could not get it; and it was no use to tell them to buy in the cheapest market if they had nothing to buy with. After a few more words from Mr. Onslow and Mr. Maciver the clause was negatived."

5. It will be seen that the importance of this question to the people of India is fully recognised in the above remarks, and there can, the Committee think, be no doubt that the repeal of this protective duty, which is imposed on all foreign silver plate imported into England, would, in course of time, tend to the improvement of exchange by promoting the consumption of silver and developing a large trade in silver goods, where none now exists, between this country and Great Britain; no trade is possible under the existing conditions of the law, because all Indian silver manufactures are subject to the tax of

1s. 6d. per ounce; they are also required to be Hall-marked before they are submitted for sale, under a penalty, in failure of their being so marked, of £10 for each piece of plate so exposed; the articles are, further, liable to be broken up by the Assay Office if the silver of which they are made falls by one-fourth of a grain to come up to the English standard of fineness, which differs considerably from the Indian standard of the rupee. English manufactures other than plain ware are submitted for the assay mark in the rough state, and before they are finished, to avoid the defacing operation of assaying and marking; but this is manifestly impossible in the case of Indian manufactures. The beautiful silver work of Cashmere, Guzerat, Cutch, the Punjab, and Southern India, is therefore kept entirely out of the English market by these prohibitive and protective duties, to the manifest disadvantage of the English purchaser as well as to the detriment of the Indian manufacturer.

6. One of the greatest evils of the present Hall-marking system in England is the destruction of the work if the silver is found to be only a quarter of a grain under the specific standard; in such cases the articles are entirely broken up and rendered fit only for the melting pot. So small a deviation from the English standard can make no real difference in the intrinsic value of silver ware to the purchaser, since it represents the value of only about the eighth of a farthing per ounce. Much of the highly-chased and elaborate work of the Indian silversmith cannot be made in soft pure silver, as the metal requires to be alloyed to a certain degree of hardness to enable it to be worked up to perfection.

7. The complicated and elaborate system of working this tax in England also operates unfavourably in many ways for the English manufacturers and exporters of silver goods. A firm in Calcutta recently had an elaborate and artistic piece of mechanical silver work made in London to order, the drawback for which for export amounted to £20; they were obliged, however, to forego this considerable sum because the English Custom House refused to allow the drawback unless the work was taken to pieces and the silver weighed, for the purpose of the drawback, separately from the other parts, and as the article was from the nature of its construction an extremely difficult piece of work, and could not be undone and put together again without much delay, the firm were obliged unjustly to suffer the loss.

8. The Committee annex a paper from the "Jeweller and Metal-worker" on the tax on silver plate, which gives some interesting information on the matter (see Appendix C).

9. The Committee think that they have now said enough to show the great importance of this subject to the Public and the Government of India as well as to the Indian manufacturer of silver goods. It has also an important bearing on the general question of a larger consumption of silver, and the consequent amelioration of its present reduced value, and above all on the possible development of a considerable trade in silver manufactures with England. The Committee would therefore respectfully urge on the Government the desirability of bringing the subject prominently to the notice of the British Government, with a view to the speedy repeal of this most restrictive and impolitic tax, and the amendment of the laws applying to the system of Hall-marking to the extent of rendering the application of that system non-compulsory.

APPENDIX A.

PETITION OF ARTISTS ON THE SILVER DUTY.

(This petition was presented to Parliament by Mr. MUNDALL, M.P., and Mr. LA COURTNEY, M.P.)

To—The Honourable the Commons of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland in Parliament assembled.

The humble petition of the undersigned Artists, designers in metal work, educated in schools in connection with the Science and Art Department, South Kensington.

MOST RESPECTFULLY SHEWETH,—That your petitioners are greatly interested in the attempt now being made to abolish the taxation of gold and silver plate, and to alter the laws relating to Hall-marking of those wares.

2. That your petitioners have long since found that the trade of the silversmith offers no inducement to artists to adopt it as a profession, owing to the limited demand for artistic silver productions.

3. That your petitioners are convinced that the duty of 1s. 6d. an ounce, which amounts, at the present price of silver, to a tax of 33 1-3 per cent. upon the value of the raw material, materially assists in limiting the demand for artistic productions.

4. That your petitioners are further convinced that the duty, coupled with the laws relating to the system of compulsory Hall-marking, limits the number of manufacturers, inasmuch as the hindrances to trade are such as prevent "outsiders" from engaging in the business, although there is nothing in silver, as distinguished from other metals, offering difficulties to the amateur.

5. That your petitioners have great reason to believe that if the duty were abolished, and if Hall-marking were rendered a voluntary institution under a system more in accordance with the practice of modern trade, an important development of the art of the silversmith might confidently be expected in the United Kingdom.

6. That the laws relating to the gold and silver trades have lately been under the consideration of a Select Committee of your honourable House, and that, with a single dissentient the duties have been condemned, the report recommending their abolition "whenever the state of the revenue shall permit."

7. That although the Select Committee, by a majority of one, recommended that Hall-marking should remain as at present—a compulsory proceeding—your petitioners humbly submit that the balance of evidence brought before honourable members was strongly in favour of a voluntary system of Hall-marking.

8. The freedom of trade being an established principle in the case of all other kindred trades, a prima facie case was presented by several of the witnesses in favour of an extension of those principles to the gold and silver trades.

9. That artists have a direct interest in freedom of trade which, as it affects the demand for commodities, opens out new fields for their employment, encouraging them to study at home and abroad, with a view to the cultivation of their taste and the acquirement of knowledge of the respective manufactures.

10. That art would suggest that the quality of the material is of but little importance as compared with the artistic design and execution of manufactures.

And your petitioners therefore humbly pray that your honourable House, taking all these facts into consideration, will "as soon as the state of the revenue shall permit," give effect to the recommendation of the Select Committee, by abolishing the duties upon gold and silver plate, and that the laws relating to the gold and silver trades may all be abolished, and that a new Act may be passed providing for a voluntary system of Hall-marking easily accessible to manufacturers and dealers throughout the United Kingdom.

And your petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

APPENDIX B.

At a meeting of "The Goldsmiths' and Silversmiths' Free Trade Association" held September 10th at the Office of the Association, 12, Pall-Mall East, Mr. Edward J. Watherston presiding, it was unanimously resolved—(1) "That the question of the depreciation in the price of silver and the fall in the value of the Indian rupee demands the early attention of Her Majesty's Government; that, in order to restore its market value, it is desirable that no hindrances to its use for manufacturing should be permitted any longer to prevail; that the duty of 1s. 6d. per ounce upon manufactured plate, and the laws relating to the system of compulsory Hall-marking, in addition to being unjust and subversive of the principles of modern commercial legislation, are in the highest degree impolitic, as inviting the consumption of a raw material the value of which for currency purposes it is essential should be maintained." (2) "That a copy of the foregoing Resolution be forwarded to Her Majesty's Ministers."

APPENDIX C.

A tax upon silver plate was first originated in the year 1719, to assist in the reduction of the National Debt, which had become considerably enlarged by the cost of the Spanish War, and it was thought to reduce those costs principally by taxing the British silversmiths' industry. This tax, by the mode in which it was made to apply to the trade, soon proved very depressive to it; even at that time, for in 1758 it was repealed, the main cause being "for the encouragement of trade." It, however, was soon again imposed, namely, 1784, this time to pay for the American War. The tax was soon afterwards increased, and again, in the years 1804 and 1815, and all for war purposes. The French War, which occurred at the last-named period, having cost £601,500,343, an enormous addition to the National Debt. To the makers of heavy silver goods paying duty, its retention may prove a source of profit, by the charging of the purchasing public the full duty of 1s. 6d. per ounce upon all their purchases, and pocketing the allowance usual for drawback. Therefore we may expect a few, and very naturally too, exclaiming in favour of things remaining as they are.

We have said to manufacturers of special and heavy goods doubtless a profit may be made of some magnitude where a considerable trade is annually conducted out of the tax. But why should the few profit by it to the injury of the many? The makers of light and fancy goods—which have to pay the tax—cannot possibly make any such profit by the means just indicated. The time occupied in finishing the work—which is much more defaced in marking than the heavy and solid—by the workman after the process of compulsory Hall-marking more than absorbing the value of the drawback allowed, and instead of a gain there is an actual loss. Assuming, then, that the duty tax is a net gain to a few manufacturers, it is a disadvantage and a drawback to a great many others, who would like to see its entire abolition, acting as it does injuriously to them, not only pecuniarily, but also in other ways. Firstly, because it so enhances the selling price of an article as to almost forbid its sale. The fact is readily enough shown by taking any small article of jewellery, and comparing it with one of the same weight and design of execution that has paid duty on the manufacture. We have simply to point out that the former, while equal to the latter in every way, can be purchased at from 20 to 40 per cent. less, an unusually large margin of difference in the cost of an article, when contending with dull times, such as have been experienced in the jewellery trades for a very considerable period now. Secondly, because the retention of the duty tax for the advantage of the comparatively few, as against the interests of great numbers, is really and absolutely bad in principle; it fosters a tax upon knowledge; it inflicts an injustice upon the precious metal trades by harassing its members; it crushes skilled enterprise in the production of artistic work; in the manufacture of plate—which is now the principal work taxed—especially it keeps old patterns and designs in the market which are best able to stand the cumbersome system of marking now in operation at the assay halls, to the exclusion of the more showy and tastefully designed work. Such obstacles to the gold and silver plate trade discourage a taste for design, as well as business enterprise, by having a tendency to lessen the demand for such articles, and so cause manufacturers' stocks to move but slowly through there being too much sameness of design, and which our present system of compulsory Hall-marking every article of plate—as well as some other—has every tendency to encourage. The system of compulsory Hall-marking in England, to which all duty-paying articles are subjected, being so crude and distinctive in its application, that it has in a manner prevented the production of designs in conformity with the times, as regards style and taste; it has, therefore, as it were, hampered the English silver trades, and promoted the advancement of foreign trade in place of our own. A very good argument in support of this testimony is to be raised by the gradual decrease in the number of ounces upon which duty has of late years been paid, and of drawback allowed for exportation. The statistics show a remarkable and continuous diminution in the weight of silver on which duty has been paid.

During the period of the five years between 1855-59, the decrease was 192,500ozs., being 991,300ozs. in the former year and 801,800ozs. in the latter, and the weight on which the drawback was allowed from 158,440ozs. to 116,146ozs., a decrease of 40,294ozs. And during the period of five years from 1875-79 the decrease was 140,152ozs., being 880,493ozs., on which duty was paid in the former year, and 740,239ozs. in 1879. In the same period the weight on which the drawback was allowed decreased 35,059ozs., from 120,280ozs. to 85,121ozs. And last year the weight on which the duty was paid still showed a further decrease of 101,619ozs. from the former year, the amount being 638,620ozs. These figures show a rapidly increasing decline in both the manufacture and exports of silver plate, and it is more than obvious that this decline must still continue year by year as time rolls on, unless the existing restrictions are removed.

As a further proof of the injury this unjust tax does the silver trade, we may mention the enormous increase in the manufacture of silver chains, lockets, and bracelets, since the duty was removed about two years ago. Before the duty was taken off these articles, there was no demand, and the manufacture was avoided, the call being for articles not Hall-marked, which of course meant the evasion of the duty, and not an objection to Hall-marked work, but purchasers preferred the risk of having a little inferior metal in their wares to paying so much above the nominal value of the metal they were purchasing in the shape of a heavy tax. Now the duty has been wisely taken off these articles, an enormous demand has sprung up for them with the Hall-mark upon them, clearly showing that it was the duty alone that proved such a source of hindrance to their former manufacture, by the considerably enhanced price it caused to be put upon the work, subject to its restrictions.

Dated 30th December, 1882.

From—ROBERT G. ORR, Esq., Chairman, Madras Trade Association,
To—The Right Honourable the Governor of Madras

I have the honour, by the direction of the Committee of the Madras Trade Association, to address Your Excellency with reference to the serious disadvantages which operate against the importation into England of Indian silver plate, and which, under the existing English law and procedure, virtually amount to prohibition.

2. In the hope that it will please Your Excellency to take such steps as may be deemed desirable towards bringing prominently before the Secretary of State for India the anomalous position in which the silver industries of India are placed with regard to importation into England, the Association beg leave to offer the following explanatory observations.

3. In the first instance, all silver plate taken into England, whether as private property or intended for sale, is charged at the Customs with a duty of eighteen pence per ounce. It is scarcely necessary to say that this duty operates as a serious discouragement to the development of any silver industry; it has been well said that "it is subversive of the principles of modern fiscal legislation, obstructive to art progress, and an insurmountable obstacle to technical education in its application to silversmith's work;" and, if this be true as to levying an invidious duty in England, it is equally true in its effects upon the silver industries of India.

4. Notwithstanding the levy of this burdensome and obstructive duty, the curious anomaly exists that, even after the English Government receive that duty, they forbid the goods being dealt in, excepting under conditions which amount practically, as concerns the Indian produce, to prohibition of sale in England.

5. Under laws dating back more than 500 years, the gold and silversmiths of London were empowered to furnish those who manufactured silver below a certain standard, and in the present day the "Hall" authorities, against whom there is no remedy and no appeal, wield with absolute despotism the extraordinary powers conferred upon them in the middle ages.

6. The law is that all silver plate, but not jewellery, shall be of a certain standard of fineness and then "Hall-marked" under a penalty of £10 and confiscation. If the manufactured plate, under any circumstances, be found below the English standard, it is at once mercilessly "smashed and battered" as if it contained or embodied the plague or some other fell disease.

7. But even if the Indian manufacturer have complied with the law, if he has specially obtained English standard silver—the rupee is considerably below that standard—and has paid eighteen pence per ounce, he is met with a further difficulty and an insurmountable objection. The silver plate must, before marking, be "scrapped and assayed," and this process is performed so clumsily and ruthlessly that the English manufacturer finds it necessary to take back his goods to the workshop to be repaired and "done up;" he, therefore, sends his wares to the Hall in an unfinished state before being polished or burnished.

8. It is obvious that this course is not open to the Indian manufacturer (except at prohibitive cost), who must be content to run the risk of seeing his finished goods "mauled," and in some instances injured beyond recovery.

9. This simple statement of the difficulties which attend the importation of Indian silver plate into England appear to the Trades' Association to present strong grounds for an urgent representation to the Home Authorities for the removal of an impolitic and invidious duty. The Association are of opinion that the recent large-minded abolition of duties in India on English manufactures might well be followed by the mother country, in promptly and completely abolishing the silver duties, or at least in sweeping away the absurd and anomalous privileges so successfully exercised by the Hall authorities, manifestly to the protection of the English silver trade interest, but banefully injurious to the production of Indian art and industry.

Memorial from the Chairman, Madras Trade Association, dated 30th December 1882

Order thereon by the Government of Madras

Ordered that of the two copies furnished of this memorial, one be forwarded for the favourable consideration of the Secretary of State for India and the other to the Government of India.

No. 1, dated 9th January, 1883

From—The Government of Madras,

To—The Secretary of State for India

We have the honour to submit a memorial from the Madras Trade Association pointing out the difficulties which the importer of silver plate into England has to encounter.

2. We believe that these difficulties have not been in any degree exaggerated, and we trust that Her Majesty's Government will consider whether their removal is not possible. As matters stand at present, the English market is closed to plate of Indian manufacture, and one of those industries for which there is in this Presidency undoubted aptitude and which it is our special desire to foster, is greatly discouraged.

No. 26, dated 23rd January, 1883.

From—The Government of India,

To—The Secretary of State for India.

On the 17th March 1882, we telegraphed to Your Lordship's predecessor in the following terms:—

"We desire very earnestly to press upon Her Majesty's Government the importance of repealing the silver duty this year if possible. We believe that this would be a very gracious act at a time when we have repealed our custom duties; it would give much satisfaction to the public here, and would be highly politic."

2. In a Despatch No. 137 of May 4th, 1882, Lord Hartington made the following remarks:—

"I caused the substance of your telegram of the 17th of March last, relative to the importance of repealing the silver duty, to be communicated to the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury. The Chancellor of the Exchequer, in his Financial Statement, delivered in Parliament on the 24th of April, remarked that he is not prepared to make any proposals for the repeal of the duty at the present time, although he recognised that there were two reasons which recommended its abolition, the first and special one being the strong opinion expressed by Your Government in favour of its early removal, and the second the embarrassment to the market and hindrance to trade caused by its maintenance."

3. The Madras Government have forwarded to us a copy of their Revenue despatch of January 9th, 1883, in which they submit to Your Lordship a memorial from the Madras Trades' Association, pointing out the difficulties which the importer of silver plate into England has to encounter. "We believe", the Madras Government add—

"that these difficulties have not been in any degree exaggerated, and we trust that Her Majesty's Government will consider whether their removal is not possible. As matters stand at present, the English market is closed to plate of Indian manufacture, and one of those industries for which there is in this Presidency undoubted aptitude, and which it is our special desire to foster, is greatly discouraged."

4. We have now the honour to forward a representation from the Calcutta Trades' Association on the same subject.

5. Whether we consider this question from the point of view of the English consumers or from that of the foreign importers of silver, the desirability of abolishing the present duty, if the adoption of such a course be possible, is so obvious that we need not dwell on the subject at any length. Mr. Gladstone, in the speech of which an extract is given in paragraph 3 of the memorial from the Calcutta Trades' Association, stated that "the reasons in favour of the alteration of the duty" were "very weighty." We venture to think, however, that there are two considerations in connection with this subject which render the repeal of this duty specially desirable. The first of these considerations is that, inasmuch as the system under which the duty is at present levied places the English silversmith at an advantage compared to his foreign competitor, it is not in harmony with the general policy of Her Majesty's Government in such matters. The second is that the repeal of the duty, whilst conferring a benefit on the English consumers of silver, will also act beneficially on the general financial position of the Government of India.

6. As regards the first of these two points, we think there can be no doubt that, under the existing system, the English silversmith is to a certain extent protected against foreign competition. If the fineness of the imported articles is inferior in however slight a degree to the English standard of fineness, which differs considerably from the Indian standard of the rupee, not only is the sale of the articles in England prohibited, but they are liable to be broken up and thus rendered valueless as works of art. It may be said that Indian silver-smiths should only manufacture articles for export of the required fineness. But this is not in all cases possible. The Calcutta Trades' Association points out that—

"much of the highly-chased and elaborate work of the Indian silversmith cannot be made in soft pure silver, as the metal requires to be alloyed to a certain degree of hardness to enable it to be worked up to perfection."

Again, many of the articles manufactured in India are of very delicate workmanship which cannot, when they have once been finished, be assayed and hall-marked without being injured. On this subject the Calcutta Trades' Association say that—

"English manufactures other than plain ware are subjected to the assay and marked in the rough state, and before they are finished, to avoid the delaying operations of assaying and marking, but this is manifestly impossible in the case of Indian manufactures."

7. Turning to the second point mentioned above, namely, the extent to which the repeal of the duty would act beneficially on the general financial position of the Government of India, we need hardly point out that any measure tending to increase Indian exports and draw some portion of the population, however small, away from agriculture to manufactures, would, in any case, be very desirable. To these general considerations may, however, be added the argument that, in view of the large sterling payments to be made annually in England by the Government of India, it is especially to be desired in Indian interests that any duty tending to obstruct the consumption of silver in the form of plate, &c., should no longer be levied.

8. To these considerations we may perhaps add another which is of a political rather than a purely fiscal nature. It cannot be doubted that the recent abolition of the import duties, although highly beneficial to India, has been regarded by a considerable section of the Indian community as having been dictated in the interests of England. By those who hold such views it is urged that, after the large sacrifices India has made to give complete freedom to trade, it is not unreasonable to expect that a small fiscal reform of this nature, which would benefit India, should be made by Her Majesty's Government in England. Apart from the purely fiscal aspects of the question, we venture to think it would be desirable, on political grounds, to remove this grievance.

9. For these reasons we beg strongly to support the request of the Trades' Associations of Calcutta and Madras. We trust that it will be found possible to abolish the silver duty in connection with the financial arrangements of the year 1883-84.

10. As regards the question of drawbacks, which we understand constituted a considerable difficulty when the matter was under consideration a year ago, we may perhaps be allowed to mention that in all the customs reforms carried out in India, no drawback has ever been allowed, although we have received frequent representations from individuals to the effect that, by reason of certain fiscal changes, a pecuniary loss has been entailed upon them.

No. 74, dated 10th May, 1883.

From—The Secretary of State for India,

To—The Government of India.

With reference to your letter dated the 23rd January last, No. 26 (Finance and Commerce), I forward herewith, for the information of Your Excellency, a copy of correspondence with the Treasury on the subject of the English plate duties, and of the system of compulsory Hall-marking.

Dated 22nd February, 1883.

From—J. K. Goss, Esq., Under-Secretary of State for India,

To—The Secretary to the Treasury.

In continuation of Sir Louis Mallet's letter of the 7th instant, I am directed by the Secretary of State for India in Council to forward herewith, for submission to the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, a copy of a letter from the Government of India, forwarding with their strong support a memorial from the Calcutta Trades' Association, in which that Association presses for the early repeal of the English import duties on Indian plate.

I am to request that you will direct their Lordships' attention to the last paragraph of the letter of the Government of India on the subject of drawbacks.

Dated 13th March, 1883.

From—LEONARD COURTNEY, Esq., Secretary to the Treasury.
To—The Under-Secretary of State for India.

I am directed by the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury to acquaint you, for the information of the Secretary of State in Council of India, that they have read with attention the memorial presented to the Secretary of State by the Gold and Silversmiths' Free Trade Association, and the letter from the Government of India, forwarding with strong support a memorial from the Calcutta Trades' Association in favour of the repeal of the gold and silver plate duties.

I am to say that the strongly-expressed wishes of the Government of India are entitled to, and receive the respectful consideration of Her Majesty's Government.

I am at the same time to point out that the financial equilibrium of the Budget must be a primary consideration with the Imperial Government, and that the question at issue in this case is complicated by the large amount of drawback for which a claim was put forward.

My Lords fear that they cannot hold out strong hopes of compliance with the wishes of the Indian Government, even in more favourable circumstances than now exist, until the trade are prepared to propose or accept such an arrangement in respect to drawback as Her Majesty's Government can recommend to Parliament.

My Lords have communicated to the Board of Trade and the Goldsmiths' Company the paper on Hall-marking received by Lord Kimberley from the Governor of Madras, and have requested to be favoured with the views both of the Company and of their Lordships of the Board of Trade upon the grievance therein stated.

My Lords desire to judge the whole question on its own merits, and they therefore will only note the difference, of which the Secretary of State in Council is doubtless aware, between the cotton duties imposed until recently in India and the gold and silver plate duty. The former were purely and avowedly protective, but the latter is not so, the Customs duty on gold and silver plate being only framed to countervail the excise duty imposed upon the home manufacture.

Dated 9th May, 1883.

From—SIR LOUIS MALLAT, C.B., Under-Secretary of State for India.
To—The Secretary to the Treasury.

I am directed by the Secretary of State for India in Council to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 13th March, and to request that you will convey to the Lords of the Treasury the Earl of Kimberley's great regret that their Lordships can hold out no stronger hope than that given in your letter of the repeal during the present Session of the duties on gold and silver plate.

With regard to the remarks in the 2nd paragraph of your letter, as to the difficulty which the question of drawbacks occasions, Lord Kimberley desires me again to request their Lordships' attention to the statement of the Government of India, referred to in my letter of 22nd February, that no drawbacks have ever been allowed in that country in cases of customs reforms, notwithstanding frequent representations of pecuniary loss entailed.

I am directed to add that Lord Kimberley is unwillingly to pass over without notice the statement, which appears to His Lordship inaccurate, at the close of your letter that the Indian cotton duties were "purely and avowedly protective." These duties, I am to remind you, were originally imposed purely for fiscal purposes, and at a time when no Indian manufactures existed which they could operate to protect; they were subsequently modified at different times in order to remove the protection which it was found that they were alleged to afford to certain classes of Indian-made goods; and they have recently been entirely abolished, in common with import duties upon many other articles.

No. 89, dated 22nd June, 1883

From—The Government of India,

To—The Secretary of State for India

We have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of Your Lordship's Despatch No. 74 (Statistics and Commerce) of May 10th, 1883, enclosing for our information a copy of correspondence with the Treasury on the subject of the English plate duties and of the system of compulsory Hall-marking.

2. In Mr. Leonard Courtney's letter of March 13th, 1883, which forms the second enclosure to this Despatch, the following passage occurs:—

"My Lords" (i.e., the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury) "desire to judge the whole question on its own merits, and they therefore will only note the difference, of which the Secretary of State in Council is doubtless aware, between the cotton duties imposed until recently in India and the gold and silver plate duty. The former were purely and avowedly protective, but the latter is not so, the customs duty on gold and silver plate being only framed to countervail the excise duty imposed upon the Home manufacture."

3. In Sir Louis Mallet's letter of May 9th, 1883, which forms the third enclosure of the Despatch under reply, Your Lordship has pointed out, in terms in which we entirely agree, the inaccuracy of the statement which we have quoted above. Not only is it inaccurate to say that the Indian cotton duties were "avowedly protective," for, as is remarked in Sir Louis Mallet's letter, "these duties were originally imposed purely for fiscal purposes," but, as a matter of fact, the greater portion of the Indian cotton duties never acted protectively at all. The protective element was entirely eliminated from the Indian Tariff, so far as the cotton duties were concerned, on March 18th, 1879, when all cotton goods containing no yarn of a higher number than 30s were exempted from duty. The duties which were abolished in March 1882 did not act protectively. On this subject we beg to draw Your Lordship's attention to paragraphs 82-86 of the Financial Statement for 1883-84, which are to the following effect:—

"The twist which is imported from Europe does not compete with Indian twist. For years past the great bulk of the twist imported has been of counts much higher than any that can as yet be made in the Indian mills, which limit themselves to the production of twist of counts not exceeding 32 (mule) and 20 (water). All such kinds of English twist were freed from duty in March 1878.

"Of the grey piece-goods imported, those classes which compete with Indian-made goods were also exempted from duty in March 1879.

"White piece-goods are hardly produced at all as yet in India, except experimentally in one or two of the Bombay mills. As I have already mentioned, there has been a large decline in the imports of this class of goods.

"The piece-goods classed as 'other sorts' are not made in India.

"The remission of the Customs duties last year did not, therefore, in any way affect Indian mills, which have had to work without the protection of 3½ per cent. on twist since March 1878, and 5 per cent. on grey piece-goods of counts below 80s since March 1879. As was pointed out in the Financial Statement of last year (paragraphs 210 and 211), the duty which was abolished last March really protected one class of Manchester goods against another, and even to some slight extent protected English goods against those manufactured in India. The duty forced trade into an artificial channel by stimulating the consumption of the coarser kinds of goods and discouraging the use of medium and finer classes to the extent of a differential rate of 5 per cent."

4. If the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury are still under any misapprehension on this point, we think it would be very desirable that their attention should be again drawn to it. There can, in our opinion, be no comparison whatsoever between the Indian cotton duties, as they existed subsequent to March 18th, 1879, and the gold and silver plate duties in England which, as we remarked in the 6th paragraph of our Despatch of 23rd

January 1883, protect the English silversmith to a certain extent against foreign competition.

5. As regards the question of drawbacks, we would again draw attention to the point to which allusion is made in the 10th paragraph of our Despatch No. 26 of January 23rd, 1883, and in Sir Louis Mallet's letter to the Secretary to the Treasury of May 9th, 1883. No drawbacks have ever been allowed in India in the case of customs reforms, notwithstanding the frequent representations of pecuniary loss entailed upon individuals by reason of these reforms.

6. It was with great regret that we learned that Her Majesty's Government were not only unable to abolish the gold and silver plate duties immediately, but that the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury could not "hold out strong hopes of compliance with the wishes of the Indian Government, even in more favourable circumstances than now exist, until the traders are prepared to propose or accept such an arrangement in respect to drawbacks as Her Majesty's Government can recommend to Parliament." We are, of course, aware, in the words of Mr. Courtney's letter of March 13th, 1883, that "the financial equilibrium of the Budget must be a primary consideration with the Imperial Government;" but we venture to hope that, in view of the smallness of the amount of revenue involved, it will be possible at some early date to preserve fiscal equilibrium without the maintenance of these highly objectionable duties; whilst we cannot but consider that the payment of drawbacks should not be allowed to stand in the way of their abolition. Under these circumstances, we would again press the matter upon the consideration of Her Majesty's Government.

No. 186, dated 18th October, 1883.

From—The Secretary of State for India,

To—The Government of India.

With reference to your letter No. 30 (Separate Revenue) of 22nd June last, I enclose, for Your Excellency's information, a copy of further correspondence with the Treasury on the subject of plate duties.

2. I do not think it advisable to continue the discussion on this subject with the Treasury at present.

Dated 10th August, 1883.

From—Sir LOUIS MALLET, C B, Under-Secretary of State for India,

To—The Secretary to the Treasury.

In continuation of my letter dated May 9th last, relative to the proposed repeal of the duties upon gold and silver plate, I am directed by the Secretary of State for India in Council to transmit herewith, for the consideration of the Lords of the Treasury, a copy of a letter from the Government of India, No. 39, Separate Revenue, dated 22nd June last.

I am directed to request that you will be so good as to call the attention of their Lordships to the last paragraph of the letter.

Dated 22nd September, 1883.

From—LEONARD COURTNEY, Esq., Secretary to the Treasury,

To—The Under-Secretary of State for India.

With reference to Sir Louis Mallet's letter of 10th ultimo (R. S. & C. 1648), I am directed by the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury to request you to inform the Secretary of State for India in Council that my Lords have read with interest the remarks by the Government of India on the protective character of the former duties of cotton imported into India.

It would not be seemly for my Lords to controvert the views expressed by the Government of India on the objects of their fiscal arrangements. But, on the other hand, with reference to the last paragraph of the letter from the Government of India to which Lord Kimberley calls their Lordship's attention, they must remark that it is for them to judge whether, and when, Parliament can be asked to charge on the tax-payers large sums (under the name of drawback) to be paid to the holders of silver goods in order to relieve the purchasers of silver, who generally belong to the wealthier class of the community, from the present tax on plate.

The increase during the month has been rather small (only 1,444 acres); this is due to the heavy rain in the early part of the month. The demand for water, however, again increased towards the end of the month, and there can now be no reasonable doubt that this Kanai will be the largest on record.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

REPORTS ON THE STATE OF THE SEASONS AND PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS FOR THE WEEK ENDING THE 4TH DECEMBER 1883.

GENERAL REMARKS.—During the past week there has been light rain in British Burma, Assam, and Eastern Bengal, but none elsewhere.

In Madras and Mysore harvesting is still going on. Standing crops are in good condition. In Bombay the khari harvest is nearly over and the rabi crops are doing well; but in two districts cotton has been injured by late rains. The river is now rising in Sindh. In the Berars and Hyderabad cotton is being picked and the khari harvested, and the prospects of the rabi are favourable.

In Central India and Rajputana rain is required for the rabi crops in parts; but general prospects continue good.

In the Punjab and North-Western Provinces and Oudh rabi sowings have been nearly finished and are germinating fairly well, but rain is wanted. Cloudy weather has prevailed in the Northern Districts, but no rain has fallen.

In the Central Provinces the prospects of the rabi crop are reported to be very favourable.

In Bengal there has been a change of weather, the sky being overcast and slight showers having fallen. General prospects continue unfavourable; the rabi sowings have been greatly affected by want of rain, much land has been left unsown, and the outturn of the rice crop, which is now being harvested, is expected to be very poor in all save the Eastern Districts and Orissa.

In British Burma the prospects of the rice crop, which has been sown over a larger area than usual, are generally good, but some loss has been caused in the Arakan Division and Bassein by excessive rain.

Slight small-pox and fever are prevalent in most Provinces, and sporadic outbreaks of cholera still occur in Southern India, otherwise the public health is good.

Prices continue to fluctuate in Bengal.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week preceding.	State of agricultural prospects
Madras—(Dec. 5th)

Dharwar		Reaping of rice crops nearly completed, that of other early crops in progress; sowing of late crops completed; cholera in 3 villages of Raibennur, out of 8 cases 2 fatal, fever in 6 and cattle-disease in 2 talukas, rice 24 to 41 and jowari 32 to 88 lbs. per rupee.
Kanara		Much fever in Haliyal and Mundgod; small pox in Hanawar and Sidapur; sowing second rice crop on coast; common rice in Karwar 11½ seers per rupee, in district average 16½ seers per rupee.
Rajkot		Weather cold; fever continues in some parts, bajri 31 and jowari 35 lbs. per rupee.
		General Remarks. —River rising in Sindhi; kharif harvesting and rabi sowing operations completed except in 5 districts; young rabi crops doing well; cotton crops slightly injured by late rain in parts of Sholapore and Satara; fever in most districts; slight cholera, cattle-disease, and small-pox in a few places.
Bengal—(Dec. 5th)
Chittagong	11	Weather alternately cloudy and fair; outturn of rice crops not promising, cold-weather crops doing well, prices stationary; cattle-disease has abated, general health good.
Dacca	Nil	Rice crop good; rain wanted for cold-weather crops.
24 Pargunnahs	06	Prospects of both late rice and winter crops unfavourable; harvesting of late rice proceeding, average yield estimated at about 8 to 10 annas; cultivation of pulses and other winter crops not progressing favourably owing to the dryness of the soil; average price of common rice from 12½ to 16 seers per rupee, public health fair, though sporadic cases of cholera and fever reported from most parts of the district.
Moorshedabad	Nil	Weather bright and cool; amra is being reaped; an eight-anna crop is expected on an average; winter crops suffering from want of rain, but those on deurak lands doing well; fever still prevails in the Jangypore town; cholera has broken out in Thana Shamshirgunga.
Rajshahye	Nil	Weather cloudy; amra reaped in parts of the district; rabi wants rain, but on deurak lands it is said to be a good crop; prices easier.
Burdwan		A few drops of rain; weather overcast; in the Raneezunge subdivision the amra is estimated at a 4½-anna crop; sugarcane is beginning to feel the effects of drought, and rain is much wanted for winter crops, general health indifferent.
Rungpore	Nil	Weather cloudy and cool; amra is being reaped; prospects bad; the crop on high lands is almost a total failure; transplanting of tobacco going on; prices stationary; fever prevalent.
Bhagulpore	Nil	Prospects unfavourable; rice harvest has commenced; the crop on high lands has almost altogether failed, on low lands it is expected to yield on an average an outturn of from 4 to 8 annas; rabi , where sown, is still green and strong, and, if rain falls, may yield a fair outturn, but a good deal of land has remained unsown; price of rice 13 seers 14 chittacks per rupee.
Purneah	Nil	Weather cloudy to-day (4th); prospects of crops bad if no rain falls; rabi sowings only made here and there; price of common rice 14 seers per rupee, fever still continues.
Poona	Nil	Paddy is being reaped, it will be a poor crop; rabi coming on well; irrigation is being resorted to where practicable, but rain is much wanted; public health good.
Duflhanga	Nil	Weather cloudy to-day (4th); a very poor rice crop is being harvested; rabi started for want of moisture in the soil; fever not increasing.
Hazareebagh	Nil	Weather cold and cloudy since the night of 3rd; rice harvest continues, but outturn unfavourable; rabi prospects not improved; a few cases of small-pox still reported; public health good.
Cuttack		Weather cool and cloudy; slight rain on 3rd, and it was raining at the time of report; rice crop on high lands is being reaped, on low lands it is ripening; winter crops doing well; prices of rice almost unchanged; public health generally good.
		General Remarks. —The weather was cloudy in almost all districts, and there was a slight rainfall in Chittagong, the 24 Pargunnahs, Burdwan, and Cuttack; it is still raining in Calcutta; the general prospects of the crops continue to be very unfavourable; the cold-weather crops are generally much in need of rain, so also is sugarcane in some places; a good deal of land is said to have remained unsown with cold-weather crops on account of the continued drought;

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week preceding.	State of agricultural prospects.
		the earlier kind of the rice crop is being harvested, and the later kind is ripening; the rice crop, as already reported, will yield a very poor outturn; in some districts the average outturn will not exceed four annas; Eastern Bengal and Orissa will have a fair crop, but even in these parts it will be much below the average in some places; in some districts the prices continue to rise, in others they have fallen slightly, and in others again they remain stationary; fever is still prevalent in several districts.

British Burma—
(Nov. 29th)
Akyah (Nov. 17th)	3.36	Total rainfall 183.09 inches; public health and health of cattle good; crops in Naaf township and Koladan damaged by salt water inundation; reports from other townships favourable.
" ( " 24th)	Nil	Total rainfall 183.09 inches; public health and health of plough cattle good; Naaf and Koladan slight damage of crops by salt water inundation in the former; loungphroo crops being reaped; in Writung west about 136 acres destroyed by salt water inundation; in Rathaidang late rainfall not sufficient, and crops in some places suffered a little, in other townships crops good.
Kyaukpnya ( " 17th)	2.62	Total rainfall 169.19 inches; public health and health of cattle good; cyclone of 14th and 15th has damaged crops in vicinity of Kyaukpnya, extent not known; price of paddy and rice gone up 25 per cent., but will probably fall again shortly.
" ( " 24th)	Nil	Total rainfall 169.19 inches; public health and health of cattle good; crops much damaged in Ramri and Kyaukpnya townships by cyclone of 13th and 14th instant, estimated yield will not be more than half that of last year.
Sandaway ( " 17th)	11.32	Total rainfall 220.17 inches; three deaths from sporadic cholera in town, otherwise public health good; weather stormy; heavy rain and wind has caused some damage to crops, actual loss unknown.
" ( " 24th)	Nil	Total rainfall 220.17 inches; three deaths from cholera in town, otherwise public health good; estimated damage to crops in central township owing to heavy rain and wind reported last week 72½ tons. Four fatal cases of small-pox, otherwise public health good; paddy no supplies; prices nominal.
Hangoon		Public health and health of cattle good; 44,224 acres have been ploughed in Hmawbi township; one-seventh of the paddy crops in Hmawbi have been destroyed by floods; price of paddy Rs. 100 per 100 baskets.
Hanthawaddy
Pegu.	Nil	Total rainfall 124.00 inches; public health and health of cattle good; crops unusually heavy and in fine condition; price of paddy nominal up to 100.
Tharrawaddy (Nov. 17th)	2.40	Total rainfall 105.47 inches; public health good; 7 deaths of cattle in Sanywe township; crops good; about 322 acres have been reaped in the 5 townships; slight damage done to crops in Gyidungauk and Minbla townships from flooding of Myitnaka, Bawbin and Myile Chaungs; price of paddy from Rs. 100 to 125 per 100 baskets.
" ( " 24th)	Nil	Total rainfall 105.47 inches; public health good; cattle-disease rare; about 702 acres of paddy land have been reaped in the Sanywe township; the crops on higher lands have not matured; in some places the ears are without grain; slight damage on account of flooding has been done to the crops in the Minbla township; and loss from drought in the Tapon township; report of areas affected not received; crops in other places flourishing; price of paddy stationary.
Prome	Nil	Total rainfall 62.69 inches; public health and health of cattle good; ploughed fields all planted out; crops much benefited by late rains and there is every prospect of good harvest; on high-lying lands the rain has come too late, but the heavy rains 10 days ago seem to have freshened up the country all round, and much is now promising which before seemed likely to turn out a failure; price of paddy Rs. 65 per 100 baskets.
Bassein	Nil	Total rainfall 103.64 inches; public health good; cattle-disease slight in Lemyethana; 17 deaths in Bassein township; reaping commenced in parts of district; price of paddy from Rs. 100 to 125 per 100 baskets.

MUSEUMS AND EXHIBITIONS

RESOLUTION.

Read the following despatch—

No. 185 (Stats. and Comce.), dated India Office, London, the 18th October 1883.

From—Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India;

To—The Government of India.

I enclose a copy of a letter from the Crystal Palace Company with reference to an International Exhibition proposed to be held at Sydenham next year.

Dated Crystal Palace, London, the 12th September 1883.

From—G. G. CLEATHER, Esq., Manager, Crystal Palace Company.

To—Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India.

I have the honour to inform you that the Directors of the Crystal Palace propose to hold an International Exhibition of arts, manufactures, and scientific, agricultural, and industrial products at the Crystal Palace next year, commencing about April 3rd and closing the end of October.

The Directors have appointed an Executive Commissioner Mr. G. C. Levy, C.M.G., a gentleman who has had considerable experience in the management of Exhibitions.

The Directors venture to hope that Your Lordship will notify to the Governor General of India the fact that such an Exhibition is to be held, with the view to his bringing it under the notice of the various Governments.

As it is important that no time should be lost, I shall be obliged by your giving the subject of this letter your earliest consideration.

ORDER.—Ordered, that copy of the foregoing papers be forwarded to the Madras.

Bombay.
Bengal.
North-Western Provinces and Oudh.

Punjab.
Central Provinces.
British Burma.

REPORTS ON THE STATE OF THE SEASONS AND PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS FOR THE WEEK ENDING THE 11th DECEMBER 1893.

GENERAL REMARKS.—There has been slight rain in three districts of the Madras Presidency, where the standing crops are good. In the Bombay Presidency some injury has been caused in one district by past excessive rain and in two others by blight, but on the whole the rabi crops promise well.

In the Berare and Hyderabad cotton-picking is in progress, and the rabi crops are satisfactory. In Central India and Rajputana prospects continue good, but rain is much wanted in one of the Rajputana States, and grass is scarce.

In the Punjab rabi sowings are still going on, and prospects are favourable. Rain is generally needed in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh for the rabi crops, but those on irrigated lands are doing well. In the Central Provinces the crops are generally promising, though some injury has occurred from frost.

Rain has fallen throughout the greater part of Bengal and Assam, the heaviest falls being reported from Chittagong and Cachar. It has greatly benefited the rabi crops in Bengal which were very backward. More rain is needed in western districts, particularly in the Patna Division where none fell. Harvesting of rice is in progress, and, except in Eastern Bengal, and Orissa, the yield will probably be very poor.

An unusually heavy fall of rain occurred in Akyab, and rain has also fallen in three other districts of British Burma. The rice crop which is now being reaped has suffered from salt water, floods and other causes, but the outturn on the whole is expected to be good.

Fever, small-pox, and cholera exist in several districts, but are not epidemic.

Prices are falling in the Punjab.

BENGAL REGULATION XIX OF 1810 REPEAL BILL

The Hon'ble MR. ILBERT moved for leave to introduce a Bill to repeal Bengal Regulation XIX of 1810 within the territories administered by the Lieutenant Governor of the North-Western Provinces. He said :—

"The object of this Bill, which has been prepared on the recommendation of the Local Government, is to repeal Bengal Regulation XIX of 1810 (for the due appropriation of the rents and produce of lands granted for the support of mosques, Hindū temples, colleges, and other purposes; for the maintenance and repair of bridges, sarāis, khatras, and other public buildings; and for the custody and disposal of nazul property or escheats) within the territories administered by the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces. So far as the Regulation vests the superintendence of sarāis in the Board of Revenue, it is at variance with the existing practice, as sarāis are now managed in the North-Western Provinces entirely by the executive authorities under the immediate orders of the Government, and the Local Government reports that the other provisions of the Regulation, which provide for the management of lands granted as charitable and educational endowments and the superintendence of escheats, are not required for the territories under its administration.

"Though the Regulation, in so far as it relates to sarāis, is obsolete also in the Lower Provinces, it is still in active operation in those Provinces with regard to a few trusts and small endowments administered by the Board of Revenue, and still governs the procedure there with regard to escheats. Under these circumstances, it has been considered best to confine the Bill to the North-Western Provinces and to leave it to the Bengal Legislature to legislate for the Lower Provinces if it thinks necessary."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

BURMA COURTS BILL.

The Hon'ble Mr. LIBERT also moved for leave to introduce a Bill to amend the Burma Courts Act, 1875. He said :—

"The object of this Bill is to make certain amendments in the Burma Courts Act, 1875 (XVII of 1875), which experience has shown to be required.

"In the Act as it at present stands, the presiding officers of the Courts of the lowest grades are termed Extra Assistant Commissioners of the 1st, 2nd and 3rd class respectively. In 1882, the Subordinate Executive and Judicial Service in British Burma was reorganized, and the designations of the services were changed. The term Extra Assistant Commissioner was restricted to Extra Assistant Commissioners of the 1st and 2nd classes under the old system; and Extra Assistant Commissioners of the 3rd class were styled Myo-ōks. The result is that the present designations of the Subordinate Judicial Officers do not correspond with the designations given to the Subordinate Civil Courts by the Act. This difficulty has hitherto been ignored. Now, however, the Judicial Commissioner, Mr. Jardine, is of opinion that, as the law stands, the nomenclature used in the Courts Act should be adhered to as regards all officers of the Subordinate Judicial Service appointed to preside in Civil Courts. He advises the Chief Commissioner that questions of jurisdiction may arise and may cause inconvenience and loss to suitors; and he reports that a case of the kind has already occurred. This being the view taken by the Judge of the highest Appellate Court, the Chief Commissioner has addressed the Government of India on the subject. He wishes that all doubt on the point should be removed by substituting the words 'Extra Assistant Commissioner' for the words 'Extra Assistant Commissioner of the 1st and 2nd class,' and the word 'Myo-ōk' for the words 'Extra Assistant Commissioner of the 3rd class,' wherever they occur in the Courts Act. With this view section 3 of the Bill has been drafted. It gives the amendments made by the section retrospective effect from the 1st April, 1882, the date of the reorganization of the Subordinate Service.

"Further difficulties have also arisen from the provisions of sections 8 and 9 of the Act. Under recent orders, the Chief Commissioner has power to create additional Myo-ōkships; but, in consequence of the provisions of section 8 of the Act, additional Myo-ōks appointed by the Chief Commissioner can do no civil work unless the sanction of the Government of India is first obtained to the creation of an additional Civil Court. Again, the duties performed by Extra Assistant Commissioners and those performed by Myo-ōks are practically of the same description. The exigencies of the public service often render necessary the appointment of a Myo-ōk to succeed an Extra Assistant Commissioner or of an Extra Assistant Commissioner to succeed a Myo-ōk in the charge of a township; and the result is that an officer who should preside in a Court of grade (a) is appointed to preside in a Court which has hitherto been a Court of grade (b), or vice versa. Such changes have from time to time been made by the Chief Commissioner. The Judicial Commissioner is of opinion that, having regard to the provisions of sections 8 and 9 of the Act, such an interchange cannot legally be effected except by, or with the previous sanction of, the Governor General in Council. The inconvenience which would arise if it were held to be necessary to submit a reference to the Government of India on every occasion such as those described is apparent. The administration of the province, and particularly the administration of civil justice, would be seriously hampered. Sections 4 and 5 of the Bill therefore re-enact sections 8 and 9 of the Act in such a form that the Local Government is empowered to vary the number of Courts of grades (a) and (b), and to vary the local limits of the jurisdiction of these Courts without the previous sanction of the Government of India, and section 6 legalizes the variations in the numbers, and limits of the local jurisdictions, of these Courts, which have heretofore from time to time been made by the Chief Commissioner instead of by the Governor General in Council or by the Chief Commissioner without the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council.

"The Chief Commissioner states that the Deputy Commissioners in certain districts are overburdened by the pressure of civil appellate duties to the detriment of their executive work, and that, in order to increase their efficiency as executive officers, it is necessary to relieve them of some portion of their appellate jurisdiction. With this object, sections 7 and 8 of the Bill have been prepared. The latter section, which is based on the recommendation of the Chief Commissioner, gives him authority to invest an Assistant Commissioner with power to hear certain civil appeals which would ordinarily be heard by the Deputy Commissioner. The former section empowers the Chief Commissioner to transfer to Commissioners of Divisions all or any part of the appellate jurisdiction exercisable under the Act by Deputy Commissioners. It seems desirable to provide this second and additional mode of affording the proposed relief to Deputy Commissioners, as it is possible that the result of transferring civil appellate work from the Deputy Commissioner to the Assistant Commissioner may not always prove satisfactory.

"Lastly, under section 38 of the Act, the Chief Commissioner is only empowered to appoint and remove the presiding officers of the Court of the Extra Assistant Commissioner of the 3rd class (now styled the Myo-ôk). The presiding officers of all the other Courts under the Act must be appointed by the Governor General in Council. These provisions have been found to cause practical inconvenience, and the Government of India see no reason why the Chief Commissioner should not have, in regard to civil jurisdiction, like powers to those which the Criminal Procedure Code gives him in regard to criminal jurisdiction. Accordingly, section 9 of the Bill amends section 38 of the Act and confers power on the Chief Commissioner to appoint and remove the presiding officers of all the Courts mentioned in section 6 of the Act with the exception of the Court of the Judicial Commissioner; the power to appoint the presiding officer of that Court being reserved to the Governor General in Council."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

INDIAN EMIGRATION BILL.

The Hon'ble Mr. ILBERT also presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the law relating to the Emigration of Natives of India.

RANGOON TRAMWAYS BILL.

The Hon'ble Mr. ILBERT also presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to authorize the making, and to regulate the working, of Street Tramways in Rangoon.

BENGAL TENANCY BILL.

The Hon'ble Sir STEUART BAYLEY moved that the Hon'ble Mr. Amir Ali be added to the Select Committee on the Bill to amend and consolidate certain enactments relating to the law of Landlord and Tenant within the territories under the administration of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE AMENDMENT BILL.

His Excellency THE PRESIDENT said :—

"I would now ask the members of this Council to remain for a short time, while I make a statement upon the important subject of the Bill, which is now before the Council, for the amendment of the Criminal Procedure Code. The course which I am taking upon this occasion is, no doubt, not provided for by the Rules of Business of this Council, but it is not without precedent, and it cannot be doubted that it is advantageous, upon special occasions, that the Viceroy should reserve to himself the right to make, upon behalf of the Government, a statement in this Council, although no question is technically before it, in reference to a matter of great public interest. And I am the more justified, as it seems to me, in taking this somewhat unusual course, because I have observed that complaints have been made in many quarters of the silence of the Government during the last two months upon the question to which I am about to refer, and that it has been said that they ought, before this, to have given some explanation to the public of the steps which they had been taking in regard to this matter. I, and I am sure all my colleagues, greatly regret that it should have been thought by any one that the Government of India have in any respect acted with a want of consideration for the feelings of the opponents of this measure, or with any want of courtesy to those who have addressed representations to the Government upon the subject. I can truly say that nothing could be further from our intention than any such want of courtesy or of consideration, and I hope I may be pardoned for saying that nothing could be further from my personal character and disposition than to treat those who are opposed to me on any public measure with any want of consideration or courtesy.

"The statement which I am now about to make will show, as it seems to me, conclusively, that this is the case in regard to the complaint of which I have just spoken, because that statement will establish clearly that the Government were not, until within the last few days, in a position to make any public declaration whatever on any part of their proceedings in reference to this matter. And even now what I have to say may be looked upon as somewhat premature, and must, in some respects, be incomplete, because in the absence of two important members of the Executive Council, who have not yet arrived in Calcutta,—His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief and General Wilson, without whose presence various matters connected with the measure itself, and the mode of proceeding in regard to it, ought not to be determined by the Government,—I am not yet, on some points, in a position to say more than that these points have still to be considered by the Executive Council. But, nevertheless, under the circumstances to which I have adverted, I have thought it right not to delay to state to this Council, at its first meeting here in Calcutta, what has been the action of the Government in regard to this Bill since the conclusion of the sittings of the Legislative Council in this city last March. But as there is no question before the Council at this moment, and as, therefore, this is not the occasion for discussion, I feel bound to abstain from anything like controversy or even argument, and to confine myself for the present as much as possible to a bare statement of facts.

"It will be in the recollection of all the members of this Council that the last step which was taken with respect to this Bill, on the 9th of March last, was to order that it should be referred, in the usual manner, to the Local Governments for their consideration and report. That reference was duly made, and in course of time the opinions of the Local Governments began to come in. As they came in, they were, of course, each of them carefully examined by the members of the Government. The last of these reports of Local Governments reached Simla on the 24th of July, and the Government then lost no time in carefully and deliberately considering the course which they thought ought to be pursued with respect to this measure, after the examination of the various opinions which had been offered upon it; and they were in a position to address the Secretary of State upon the subject on the 10th of August last.

"I do not think that any one will say, looking to the great importance of this question, and the necessity of proceeding with all due deliberation in regard to it, that any time was lost by the Government, if, having received the last of the opinions of Local Governments on the 24th July, they were ready to lay their views before the Secretary of State in a despatch which left Simla on the 10th of August following.

"In that despatch, the Government of India, while expressing their opinion that the principles of policy upon which the Bill is founded ought not to be abandoned, proposed certain modifications of the measure, calculated, as they hoped and believed, to remove objections which had been urged against some of its proposals upon grounds which did not raise the question of principle. These modifications were the following:—They proposed that the jurisdiction to be conferred by the Bill upon Native Magistrates over European British subjects should be confined to District Magistrates and Sessions Judges ex officio. They proposed to leave unchanged the present powers of the Local Governments with respect to the appointment of Justices of the Peace; and they also proposed to adopt a suggestion of Sir Charles Turner, the Chief Justice of Madras, for amending section 526 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. That section enacts that 'whenever it is made to appear that a fair and impartial enquiry cannot be had in any Criminal Court, or that some question of law of unusual difficulty is likely to arise,' the High Court may transfer a case to another Court or to itself. Sir Charles Turner suggested that the High Court should be authorised to make the transfer in any case in which it should be made to appear that it was expedient for the ends of justice,' and that it would be desirable to supply what appeared to be a defect in the section by directing that in any case in which, before the commencement of the hearing, the Government, the complainant, or the accused, should notify to the Court an intention to make an application for transfer, the Court should adjourn the hearing for such reasonable time as might be required to enable an application to be made and an order obtained upon it.

"These were the modifications which were suggested in our despatch on the 10th August to the Secretary of State. I, in accordance with what I have said just now, shall not upon the present occasion enter into any arguments of these points. Whenever an opportunity for debate arrives, the Government will be quite ready to state the grounds upon which they suggested those modifications, and the views which they entertain in respect to the effect which they will have upon the provisions of the Bill.

"That, in brief, was the nature of the proposals contained in the despatch. To make this statement complete, I ought to say that our hon'ble friend and colleague General Wilson, in regard to this despatch as to the former one, maintained the position which he had previously taken up of objecting to the measure altogether. The despatch, as I have said, went home on the 10th of August; it was considered by Her Majesty's Government at home and by the Secretary of State in Council; and in a reply, dated the 8th of November last, the Secretary of State in Council expressed his concurrence in the proposals of the Government of India. That reply reached Calcutta last Saturday, the 1st of December, and this, consequently, is the earliest opportunity which has been afforded to me since that despatch came into the hands of the Government for making any statement with regard to this matter.

"There is also another question, connected not with the substance of this measure but with the manner of proceeding with it, to which I wish to refer on this the earliest opportunity. In the month of September last, the Government received a memorial from the Chairman of the Anglo-Indian Defence Association, which contained two requests. The first was that the papers which had been received from the Local Governments in connection with this Bill should be published at once; and the second was that further proceedings with regard to the Bill should be stayed until Parliament had had an opportunity of considering the Bill and expressing its opinion upon it. In the reply which was sent to that memorial the memorialists were informed that their first request had already been complied with, and that the papers relating to the matter had been published in the Gazette, where they appeared, I think, on the 8th of September. They were published at the earliest moment possible; we only waited until we had ascertained that the despatch we had sent home was in the hands of the Secretary of State, and until we were informed that he had no objection to the publication of the papers. The second request of the memorialists, namely, that any further proceedings with regard to the Bill should be put off until Parliament had had an opportunity of discussing the question and of pronouncing an opinion upon it, related to a matter which was essentially and entirely in the hands of Her Majesty's Government. Any question concerning proceedings in Parliament necessarily can only be determined by the Government at home. Such questions are altogether beyond the scope of the Government of India, and the Cabinet alone can decide what course should be taken upon any matter involving the proceedings of either House of Parliament. The memorial was forwarded by the next mail after it had been received to the Secretary of State, and his opinion on the subject of postponement was asked by the Government of India, who only said that the questions raised by the Bill ought in their judgment to be settled, one way or the other, before the end of the next sittings of the Legislative Council in Calcutta. In the same despatch in which the Secretary of State replied to our general proposals, he replied also to that particular request of the Anglo-Indian memorial, and he informed us that Her Majesty's Government do not see any good reason why a measure, which lies entirely within the competence of this Legislative Council and is already before that body, should be postponed till Parliament meets, and they conclude therefore that the Bill will be taken up in the ordinary course of business, so that it may be disposed of during the usual session of the Legislative Council at Calcutta.

"I stated in the debate on the 9th March last as my personal opinion that, if the opponents of the Bill desired to appeal to the House of Commons, I should be the last person to object to such a course. I entertain the same feeling still, and I have made no concealment of it. It will be observed that the Secretary of State in his reply leaves a certain discretion to the Government of India as to the mode of proceeding with regard to this Bill within well-defined limits. I am not yet in a position, in consequence of the absence of the two members of the Executive Council to whom I have referred just now, to say exactly when the next step with regard to this Bill will be taken. It is a subject which will be considered shortly by that Council. The next step, in the ordinary course of business, will be the reference of the Bill to a Select Committee, who will consider the Bill and any amendments which may be proposed in it, and due notice will of course be given to hon'ble members of this Council before any motion to refer the Bill to a Select Committee is brought before them.

"Such is the statement which I desire to make as to the action of the Government of India in respect to this Bill since March last. It shows clearly, as it seems to me, that, until last Saturday, when the despatch from the Secretary of State reached Calcutta, the Government here was not in a position to make any public declaration on the subject. The question was one which was originally referred to the Secretary of State, and the proposed proceedings of the Government of India received his sanction. It was one which, from the circumstances of the case, could not be dealt with by the Government of India, except in consultation with Her Majesty's Government; and one of the points, that relating to the proposal to postpone the Bill until after the meeting of Parliament, was wholly within the province of Her Majesty's Government at home, and could only be decided by them. Until, therefore, we were in possession of the views of Her Majesty's Government, we were debarred altogether from saying anything in public on the subject. I have, however, seen it said that, when Her Majesty's Government at home determined on the course which they were going to take, and the answer which they proposed to send, that course might have been communicated to the Government of India by telegram, and that, after having received that telegram, the Government of India might have made a statement to the public. Now, it appears to me, first, that it would have been inconsistent with ordinary practice, and with official propriety, to make a public statement of this kind upon a telegram, unless Her Majesty's Government had directed that we should do so. But, further than that, I cannot think it would have been at all safe for the Government of India to have made any such statement upon a telegraphic communication. Suppose that that had been done, and suppose that when the despatch came, and had been made known to the public, it had been possible to say that there was any inconsistency between the statement made upon the telegraphic communication and the precise words of the despatch from the Secretary of State. I leave it to the members of this Council to consider whether that would not have produced a result very far from desirable.

"It seems to me that it was absolutely necessary that I should be in a position to do what I have done to-day, namely, to use the precise language of the Secretary of State in explaining his views. Until the words in which those views were expressed were in my possession, I could not with any discretion have spoken in public upon the subject. Then I must also say that it appears to me that the proper place to make the first public declaration upon any proceedings connected with a measure which is before this Legislative Council is in this Legislative Council itself. I think that members of Council might have complained perhaps, if I, as the President of this Council, had made any such statement elsewhere. I am sure that most legislative bodies would undoubtedly have felt that in such a case some kind of slight had been cast upon them, although I have such confidence in the good feeling of the members of this body that I believe that, if I had been in a position to make such a statement, and had thought it right in the interest of the public to do so, some weeks ago, and at a time when this Council was not sitting, they would have overlooked any apparent discourtesy which might have been involved in such course; and, if an opportunity had been afforded me, I should probably not have hesitated to avail myself of it. But, as I have said before, the information was not in my possession until last Saturday, and this is the first public occasion on which a statement of that kind could have been made.

"I will say no more now. The immediate occasion is not, as I have said, one which admits of the introduction of any controversial matter, but I cannot conclude these few remarks without repeating that those who think that I or my colleagues have felt a cold indifference to the representations of those who are opposed to this Bill, are entirely in error. The silence we have maintained till now has, as I have shown, been a necessary silence. Now that I have spoken, I earnestly trust that no word which has fallen from me will tend to add to the bitterness of the present controversy."

The Council adjourned to Friday, the 14th December, 1883.

REPORTS ON THE STATE OF THE SEASONS AND PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS FOR THE WEEK ENDING THE 18th DECEMBER 1888.

GENERAL REMARKS.—Rain has fallen generally over the Madras Presidency, Mysore, and Coorg. Slight falls have also occurred in two districts of Assam, but none elsewhere. Harvesting continues in Madras, and the standing crops promise well. In Coorg the ripe paddy has suffered slightly from the unusual rain, which has however done good to backward crops. In Bombay cotton is attacked by blight in two districts, but rabi prospects are generally favourable. In the Berars, Hyderabad, Central India, and Rajputana the prospects are also favourable, but rain is needed for the rabi in Jaipur and Ulwar. Rabi sowings have been completed in the Punjab, and the crops are looking well, though rain is required. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh prospects are fair, but the rabi crops on unirrigated lands stand in need of rain. In the Central Provinces the weather is favourable, and prospects good.

Last week's rain in Bengal, while benefiting the rabi crops, has been unfavourable to rice, which, except in Eastern Bengal and Orissa, will yield much below the average. The rabi in Behar is reported to be suffering much from want of rain.

In Burma the rice harvest is well advanced, and promises a good yield, though rain and floods have caused some loss in several districts.

Late heavy rains have also much injured the crops in the Sylhet district of Assam.

The public health is generally fair, but cholera is prevalent in parts of Madras.

Prices are high in Bengal, and normal elsewhere.

		General Remarks. —River still low in Sool, slight rain in parts of Dharwar and Belgaon; rabi prospects generally favourable; cotton suffering from blight in parts of Dharwar and Kaladgi; fever in most districts; slight cholera in four, and cattle-disease and small-pox in eight districts.
Bengal—(Dec. 18th)
Chittagong	Nil	Weather seasonable; aman is being harvested, outturn indifferent; prices stationary; general health good.
Dacca	Nil	Paddy being cut, prospects of winter crops good; sallower being sown.
24-Pargunnahs	Nil	Paddy is being harvested, the late rain has done some injury to the crop lying out, but not stored; yield of paddy estimated at from 8 to 10 annas; prospects of rabi crops fair; price of common rice from 14 to 17½ seers per rupee; public health generally good, though cases of cholera and fever continue to be reported from some parts of the district.
Moorshedabad	Nil	Weather warmer than last week; harvesting of aman proceeding; outturn will be rather more than half an average crop; rabi looking well; the rainfall of last week has allowed of large additional areas being sown; indigo very fine indeed; prices easier; public health good.
Rajshahi	Nil	Weather cold; reaping of aman still going on; prospects of winter crops improving; public health fair.
Burdwan	Nil	Weather fine and cool; harvesting of aman continues, outturn expected to be bad; rabi crops slightly improved; public health fair.
Rungpore	Nil	Weather seasonable; harvesting of aman in progress, outturn short; prospects of cold-weather crops fair; sugarcane promises well; prices stationary; fever prevalent.

BENGAL REGULATION XIX OF 1810 REPEAL BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. ILBERT introduced the Bill to repeal Bengal Regulation XIX of 1810 within the territories administered by the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces, and moved that it be circulated for the purpose of eliciting opinion thereon.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. ILBERT also moved that the Bill and Statement of Objects and Reasons be published in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Government Gazette in English and in such other languages as the Local Government might think fit.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

BURMA COURTS BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. ILBERT also introduced the Bill to amend the Burma Courts Act, 1875, and moved that it be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Messrs. Gibbs and Quinton and the Mover.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. ILBERT also moved that the Bill and Statement of Objects and Reasons be published in the British Burma Gazette in English and in such other languages as the Local Government might think fit.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

INDIAN EMIGRATION BILL.

The Hon'ble Mr. ILBERT also moved that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the law relating to the Emigration of Natives of India be taken into consideration. He said:—

“This Bill proposes to re-enact, with numerous amendments, the existing Foreign Emigration Act (VII of 1871). It does not apply to the emigration which takes place from one part of British India to another, whether by sea, as from Madras to British Burma, or by land, as from Bengal and the North-Western Provinces to Assam. Emigration by sea to British Burma was until recently governed by a special Act, but that Act has been repealed by an Act of the present year, and that form of emigration is now entirely free. Emigration to Assam and the adjoining districts is, as the Council are aware, governed by Act I of 1882. With this form of emigration we are not concerned at all to-day. Accordingly, we are not called upon to consider the difficult, interesting and important questions which arise in connection with inland emigration, such as the conditions and restrictions which it may be necessary to impose on the emigration of labourers to, or on their employment in, such regions as Assam, or the mode and extent to which it may be practicable or desirable to regulate, to facilitate or promote that great movement of population from one part of the Empire to another which has, for centuries, been operating, and still operates, to fill up and bring under cultivation the waste places of India. The present measure deals only with emigration to places outside the limits of British India, and the term ‘emigration’ is defined by the Bill as meaning, for the purposes of the Act, the departure by sea out of British India of a Native of India under an agreement to labour for hire in some country beyond the limits of India other than the Island of Ceylon or the Straits Settlements. It will be observed that the measure does not affect emigration to Ceylon or to the Straits Settlements. Ceylon may, for emigration purposes, be dealt with as if it were part of British India, and it is not necessary to place any special restrictions on emigration to that island. The Straits Settlements are in a very similar position. The Indian emigration to that colony takes place, I believe, exclusively from the Madras Presidency, and is at present regulated by a special Act (V of 1877) which applies only to that Presidency. We are now engaged in negotiations with the Government of the Straits Settlements, which will, I hope, before long enable us to repeal this Act, and to make emigration to that colony entirely free. But in the meantime, and as a temporary measure, we have thought it expedient to take power to extend the Act to other parts of British India in case it should be found necessary to regulate emigration from Calcutta to the Straits. I do not in the least anticipate that the Act will be found necessary, because I believe that no such emigration takes place, or is likely to take place.

“What we are concerned with, then, to-day, is the emigration which goes on from India to certain British and Foreign colonies in the West Indies and elsewhere, and which is, as I have said, at present regulated by an Act of 1871. Proposals for amending this Act have for many years been before the Government of India, and at last resulted in the preparation of the present Bill, which was introduced into this Council in the year 1881, was circulated for opinion in the ordinary way, and was sent to England for consideration both by the India Office and by the Colonial Office. A number of objections were raised by the Agents and other representatives of the colonies to various provisions of the Bill; and the Government of India was asked by Her Majesty's Government to suspend legislation until the opinions of the Colonial Governments, to whom the Bill had been sent, should be received. I mention this circumstance in order to explain the delay which has taken place between the introduction of the Bill and the presentation of the Committee's report. The delay has not been unfruitful of good results. The Government of India thought that it afforded an excellent opportunity for ascertaining by local inquiry the way in which the system of recruiting emigrants is actually carried on in India, the respects in which the present system is capable of improvement, the attitude of the people towards emigration, and the possibility of making it more popular. Accordingly, with the consent of the Government of the North-Western Provinces, Major Pitcher was directed to make an inquiry in those Provinces into the points to which I have referred; and a similar inquiry was subsequently made by Mr. Grierson in Bihār, at the wish of His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal. To both these gentlemen—Major Pitcher and Mr. Grierson—we are deeply indebted for the admirable reports which they have sent in. Nothing is easier in this country than to collect opinions; nothing is more difficult than to get at facts; and it is as picture of actual facts that these reports are so valuable. To quote the language of a Resolution which has been issued on the subject in the Revenue and Agricultural Department—

‘They show in the clearest light the obstacles in the way of emigration, the difficulties with which even the most honest recruiter has to contend, and the extent to which popular prejudice can be allayed, or is unconsciously fostered by District-officers. Of such information there was much need. On the one hand, the Magistracy has been repeatedly charged with being hostile to emigration; on the other, grave accusations have been often brought against recruiters. Proposals, on the one hand, have been made to surround emigration with additional precautions, and have been objected to on the other as unnecessary and ruinously expensive. To arrive at the real condition of things was extremely difficult. Major Pitcher’s and Mr. Grierson’s reports have at least facilitated a decision. They show that the recruiter, though occasionally guilty of malpractices in the exercise of what is looked upon by a large number of people as a not very reputable calling, has to contend with many unnecessary difficulties; that he is frequently impeded in most objectionable ways by the police and the undertakings of the Courts; that the registration of recruits is not unseldom perfunctorily performed, that unnecessary restrictions are sometimes imposed, and that generally a more friendly attitude on the part of the Government as represented by its local officers would lead to better results.’

“In addition to the inquiries made by these two officers, meetings were held in Calcutta in February, 1882, and in March last to consider the various suggestions which had been made for amending the emigration law. Mr. Buck, the Secretary of the Revenue and Agricultural Department, presided at these meetings, and they were attended by the local Agents for the different colonies. I believe I am right in saying that the proposals which we are now laying before the Council have, after careful examination, obtained the full approval of these gentlemen, as well as of the officers of the Indian Government who are charged with the care of emigrants. In fact, I may fairly say that few measures which have been laid before this Council have been made the subject of more minute and careful enquiries than the present Bill. It is essentially a measure of details, and we have every reason for hoping that the machinery will work smoothly and well.

“I have said that this is essentially a measure of details. There is, however, one important question of principle, which is discussed in the two reports to which I have referred, and about which, although it is not necessarily raised by the Bill, it may be as well to say a few words. It is this. What should be the attitude of the Government of India towards emigration to foreign countries? Should they encourage it, discourage it, or remain neutral? Both Mr. Grierson and Major Pitcher urge in forcible language the expediency of the State taking a more active part than it has hitherto taken in the promotion of emigration. They consider that the people in the more closely populated districts should be encouraged to emigrate; that information about the colonies should be disseminated by Government officers; and that the advantages of emigration should be taught in village-schools. But Sir A. Lyall, the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces, whose opinion is entitled to the greatest weight, not only on personal grounds but because he is responsible for the government of the provinces from which the greatest flow of emigration takes place, is not prepared to go as far as this. He considers that measures such as have been suggested by Major Pitcher and Mr. Grierson might be misinterpreted, and he is doubtful whether emigration would benefit India as largely as is implied by their recommendations. He would, therefore, limit action for the present to removing all obstacles to emigration, to giving the people every facility to emigrate, and to strictly repressing the prejudiced opposition of the police and other Native subordinate officials. The question whether the one policy or the other should be adopted is not definitely raised by the present Bill, because it depends much less on the way in which the measure is framed than on the way in which it is worked; and this is a matter which the Government of India are disposed to leave very much to the discretion of the Local Government. My own opinion, I must confess, coincides rather with that of Sir A. Lyall than with that of the advocates of a more active policy. I think our attitude towards emigration should be an attitude of benevolent and watchful neutrality, and that our great object should be to secure fair play to both parties,—the employers on the one side, and the emigrants and their friends on the other,—to take care that the former are not hampered by unnecessary and vexatious restrictions, or impeded by unreasonable prejudices, and to protect the latter, so far as we can, against being entrapped or deluded into unfair bargains or carelessly or oppressively dealt with after they have left their homes. This appears, I may add, to have been the view taken by the Famine Commissioners. The present measure has been framed, if not in affirmation of, at least in complete accordance with, this policy; and, whilst carefully providing for the protection of the emigrant, we have been equally careful not to throw any needless obstacles in the way of his employer.

“In order to explain the purpose and object of the several provisions which we have introduced into the Bill with this view, I must say something about the parties to the contract which is entered into by the person who emigrates within the meaning of this Act, that is to say, who departs by sea from British India under an agreement to labour for hire, and about the several stages in his progress from his home to his place of destination. The parties to the agreement are, of course, the employer on the one hand, and the emigrant or intending labourer on the other. But from the nature of the case, these two parties are not brought into immediate contact with each other at the stage with which alone our legislation is capable of dealing. The employer is represented by the Emigration Agent for the colonies and by the recruiters acting under him; the emigrant is assisted, and to some extent represented, by the officers of the Indian Government, who are specially charged with his protection against fraud, negligence or oppression. As to the employer's representative, it must, in the first place, be remembered that it is not every colony or foreign country that is permitted to receive emigrants from this country. Emigration within the meaning of the Bill is only allowed to certain countries, of which a list will be found specified in a schedule to the Bill, and to such other countries as the Government of India may choose to add to the list. The Government may not make any such addition unless it is satisfied that the Government of the country has made such laws and other provisions as the Governor General in Council thinks sufficient for the protection of emigrants to the colony during their residence there. Assuming that a colony is authorised to receive emigrants, it acts in this country through its Emigration Agent, who is appointed by the Government of the colony, but whose appointment is made subject to the approval of the Local Indian Government. Under the Bill as introduced, the Local Government was expressly empowered to revoke the approval; but this provision was strongly objected to by the Colonial Agents as derogatory to their position, and we have accordingly omitted it. Its insertion was perhaps due to excess of caution, for there is no reason to fear that any difficulty will arise from a Colonial Government insisting on the employment of an Agent whom our Government consider manifestly unfit to perform his duties.

“The Emigration Agent, then, is the principal official on the one side. The principal officials on the other are the Protector of Emigrants and the Medical Inspector of Emigrants, who are appointed by the Local Government and are stationed at the principal emigration-ports. The North-Western Provinces Government proposed that, with the view of securing uniformity of procedure in the various registering offices which are to be maintained under the Act, and of exercising a general supervision over recruiters, the Director General of Agriculture and Commerce and his assistants in these provinces should be appointed Sub-Protectors of Emigrants. We entirely concur in these proposals, but at the same time we do not think it is necessary to make a special provision in the Bill for such appointments. We think that uniformity of procedure in the registering offices can be secured by executive order. We believe that the Director of Agriculture and Commerce and his assistants will be able to exercise the necessary supervision over the conduct of recruiters if they are invested—as a provision of the Bill enables them to be invested—with the powers of a Magistrate under the Act.

“Returning to the Emigration Agent. He conducts his local operations by means of persons called recruiters, who must on his application be licensed by the Protector of Emigrants. The license is good for a year, and, under the Bill as introduced, it restricted the operations of the recruiter to a particular specified area. This restriction has, however, been objected to by the Emigration Agents (whose objections are supported by the Secretary of State for the Colonies) as unnecessary, and as tending to increase seriously the cost of emigration. We admit the force of these objections, and, accordingly, under the Bill as it now stands, the recruiter's license extends to the whole area over which the Protector of Emigrants has authority, but it is not valid for any particular district until it has been countersigned by the Magistrate of the district. The Magistrate is empowered to refuse his countersignature if he has reason for believing that the recruiter is an unfit person, or that he has failed to perform any of the duties imposed on him under the Act. At the time when the Bill was prepared great complaints had been made of the malpractices of a class of persons who were described as sub-agents. We were informed that between the Emigration Agent and the recruiter there is almost always a third party, the sub-agent, who supervises the recruiter's operations, keeps his license, supplies him with funds, and generally keeps the depôt in the recruiting centre where the emigrants are collected together before being sent down to Calcutta. This person, we were told, was unknown to and unregulated by the law, and was sometimes of very doubtful character. Accordingly, in the first draft of the Bill, clauses were introduced specially providing for the appointment and remuneration of this sub-agent. However, when we went more closely into the matter, it appeared that these provisions were not really applicable to the facts as explained by Major Pichee and Mr. Grierson. It turns out that the so-called sub-agent is not a recruiter of any distinct class at all, but is merely a head recruiter who sometimes recruits himself, and sometimes acts as an intermediate contractor between the Emigration Agent and the ordinary recruiters, and whose remuneration naturally takes the form of a commission. And the conclusion to which we came was that it would be impracticable to draw a legal distinction between these sub-agents and other recruiters, and that it would be preferable to continue treating them as recruiters, and to make them take out a recruiter's license. But we have added to the Bill a definition of ‘recruiter’ which makes it clear that the term includes head recruiters and others who collect emigrants, as well as those who personally engage in recruiting.

“Such being the recruiter, we have to take great care that he does not enlist his emigrants on false pretences. Accordingly, we provide that he must get from the Emigration Agent on whose application he is licensed a written or printed statement, signed by the Agent and countersigned by the Protector of Emigrants, and stating the terms of agreement which the recruiter is authorized to offer on behalf of the Agent to intending emigrants. This statement must be both in English and in the Vernacular, and the recruiter is bound to show it to any person whom he invites to emigrate, and also to a Magistrate or officer in charge of a police-station, if called upon to do so.

“Having provisionally enlisted his recruits, the first thing that the recruiter does with them is to house them temporarily in a place which I referred to just now as a depôt, but which does not go by that name in the Bill. The fact is that the term ‘depôt’ is confined by the existing law to the depôts which are established at the port of departure; and, as we considered it inadvisable to disturb the existing nomenclature, we thought it better not to give any specific name to these up-country depôts, if I may so call them. You will find them referred to in section 27 of the Bill as places for the accommodation of emigrants pending their registration or removal to the port of embarkation. Many complaints had been made about the way in which some of these places are kept and managed; and accordingly we have armed District Magistrates and other officers with extensive powers for their supervision and inspection.

"The mention of registration brings me to the next stage in the emigrant's career. Up to this point he is not under any contract binding him to emigrate. In order to become so bound, he must appear before a registering officer, have his name and certain particulars about him entered in a register, and then, and not till then, is he allowed to execute an agreement to emigrate. Until these formalities have been complied with, the recruiter is not allowed to carry him off to the port from which he is to emigrate. In the provisions relating to this branch of the subject, we have departed both from the existing law and from the proposals of the original Bill. Under the Bill as introduced, the work of registering had to be done by a Magistrate of a district or sub-division. The evidence collected by Major Pitcher and Mr. Grierson tends to show that these officers have not time to do the work thoroughly, and Major Pitcher has proposed Civil Surgeons, and Mr. Grierson the officers of the Registration Department, as appropriate registering officers. The Government of Bengal have accepted Mr. Grierson's proposals, and the Government of the North-Western Provinces is willing to give Major Pitcher's suggestion a trial whenever the Civil Surgeon is competent to do the work. The Bill does not decide the question either way, but merely gives the Local Government a general power to appoint persons to be registering officers, and places them under the control of the District Magistrate, or of such other officer as the Local Government may appoint on their behalf. I may explain that the reference to this 'other officer' is intended to cover the officials whom the North-West Government wished to appoint Sub-Protectors of Emigrants. I understand that there will be no difficulty in adjusting, by means of executive arrangements, their relation to the District Magistrate.

"So much as to the officers who are to do the work. Next, as to the way in which the work is to be done. Mr. Grierson has told us in his report a great deal about the way in which the present system of registering emigrants works, or rather fails to work, and he has drawn up a statement showing, in two parallel columns, the difference between what may be called the theory and the practice of registration. This statement is so instructive and so illustrative of the kind of way in which administrative provisions are apt to break down, that I will take the liberty of reading it to the Council. The present system of registration, and the practice, are here given in parallel columns:—

The system as ordained by law and by the Bengal Rules.

1. The intending emigrant shall appear before a Magistrate, as defined in sections 3. and 85 of the Act.

2. The Magistrate shall examine the emigrant, and satisfy himself on three points, and on no more—

- (1) that he is of age;
- (2) that he understands the nature of his contract;
- (3) that he is willing to fulfil it.

3. The Magistrate shall enter certain particulars in a book kept for the purpose.

4. A copy of every registration, written on substantial paper, shall be furnished by the Magistrate to the emigrant registered.

The practice.

The registering officer is rarely empowered under section 85.

The registering officer frequently rejects recruits for other reasons, such as, for instance, that he has not been medically examined, or that he is telling lies about his address.

The Magistrate rarely, if ever, does so. The recruiter brings him an illegible, misspelt form, continually full of mistakes, which is kept in a bundle in the office. When, in rare instances, a book is kept, it is not kept "for that purpose," but inland and colonial registrations are kept mixed up together.

A copy (?) is furnished, but it is not certified or compared. It is brought ready written by the recruiter, being frequently illegible, misspelt and full of mistakes. It is almost invariably on paper of the flimsiest description—the kind of paper used for cheap overland letters. In some cases the copy is not given to the coolie, but to the recruiter!

5. Authentic copies of every such registration shall be forthwith forwarded by the Magistrate to the Emigration Agent.

6. And to the Protector of Emigrants.

7. A certain form of register is prescribed by the rules.

8. Under the rules, monthly returns of emigration should be sent to the Protector.

9. These returns should be correctly and intelligently filled up, as from them the figures for the Protector's annual report are drawn.

This is hardly ever done. The recruiter brings another copy(?) similar to the above, which is signed by the Magistrate, but never compared. It is then usually returned to the recruiter.

Often not done. When it is, the copy (?) is another incorrect form filed by the recruiter.

This form is sometimes not followed, and important columns, such as that for next-of-kin, are omitted.

In some cases these are not sent.

They are never correct. People are counted as emigrants who should not be counted, and vice versa; hence the Protector's and the district figures never agree, e.g., in Alipore, the district figures, quoted (I believe) in the Annual Administration Report, gave in one case 1,500 when the Protector's were only 700. The Protector's figures were correct.

"Now, I do not mean to say that our proposed system is certain to work quite smoothly and perfectly, nor can I feel sure that these, or indeed any other, legislative provisions will work precisely in the way in which we intend them to work. But at least we have done our best to take warning by what has been told us, and to devise a remedy for some of the most obvious defects in the existing system. In the first place, we propose to reverse the existing order of proceedings, and to make the registration come first and the execution of the emigrant's agreement afterwards. We think that there is a better chance of the agreement being accurate and satisfactory in form and substance if it is drawn out in the office of the Magistrate or other registering officer after the intending emigrant has been passed and registered, than if it is drawn up, as it is under the present practice, by some illiterate person beforehand. The course of proceeding will be this. The recruiter will take his recruits before the registering officer, who in the Mufassal may or may not be the Magistrate of the district, and in the emigration-ports will be the Protector of Emigrants himself. The registering officer is to examine the recruit, apart from the recruiter, with reference to the agreement into which he proposes to enter, and is to satisfy himself that the recruit is competent and willing to enter into the agreement, that he understands its nature, that he has not been induced to enter by any coercion, undue influence, fraud, misrepresentation or mistake, that its terms are in conformity with law, that is to say, contain all the particulars which, as I shall presently explain, it is required by the Act or rules to embrace, and that it is in conformity with the statement which, as I have already explained, the recruiter is required to show the recruit. If he is satisfied on these points, he is to enter in a register-book the name of the recruit, and various particulars concerning him, including the name, sex, name of father, caste, occupation and age of the intending emigrant, and the name of the village or place of which he is a resident. It may be asked, what is the use of entering all these minute details? I will let Mr. Grierson answer.

"The objects," he says, "of a system of registration, I take it, are two-fold. One is to keep a record of the transaction, just as the record of any other contract is kept. This is a minor consideration. The other and more important object is to afford a connecting link between the coolie in the colony and his relations at home. A coolie communicates with his relations at home by means of letters and by means of remittances. His relations communicate with him by letter. Under a perfect system of registration a coolie ought to be able to send a remittance home to his friends, through the Emigration Agent and the Magistrate of his district, with the certainty of its reaching its destination; and a relation should be able to go to the Magistrate of a district and say, 'My son emigrated in such-and-such a year; how can I send a letter to him?'"

"That is what we are anxious to do, to devise some means by which a coolie may be enabled to emigrate without being cut off completely from his relations and his home. And to this end we are endeavouring to supplement the improved system of registration, by giving effect to various suggestions which have been made for promoting a greater interchange of letters between the emigrants in the colonies and their friends at home, suggestions to which, I need hardly say, full effect cannot be given without the co-operation of the Colonial Governments.

"When the intending emigrant has been duly registered, the next step is to execute the agreement, which is prepared in the office and executed both by the emigrant and the recruiter in the presence of the registering officer. It must contain on one side all necessary particulars as to the nature, duration and term of the emigrant's service, and, on the other, the particulars which have been already entered in the register. These will enable him to prove his identity if necessary. Three copies of the agreement are to be taken: one goes to the emigrant himself, the other to the recruiter, and the third is kept by the Protector of Emigrants. I need not follow in minute detail the subsequent movements of the emigrant. Suffice it to say that he is conducted to the emigration-depôt at the port of departure, which is supposed to be under the constant supervision and inspection of the Protector of Emigrants and Medical Inspector, and after a short stay there is duly shipped off in an emigrant-vessel. Every emigrant-vessel must be licensed, and the license must not be granted until the vessel has been surveyed and it has been ascertained that she is seaworthy, has proper and sufficient accommodation, is properly ventilated, has all the tackle, apparel and furniture requisite for her intended voyage, is properly manned and officered, and is, in fact, in all respects suitable for the carriage of emigrants. There is ample power to make rules as to the provisions, clothing, fuel and water which are to be supplied for the emigrants' use, and as to the staff of surgeons and attendants who are to be on board the vessel. And the Protector of Emigrants and the Medical Inspector are bound by the Act to see personally that these rules are complied with. The emigrant goes on board under their personal supervision, and the master of the vessel is required to execute a bond for the due performance during the voyage of the duties imposed on him by the Act. Thus every reasonable precaution is taken which our law can enforce that the emigrant shall be properly treated from the time when he leaves the place where he is recruited to the time when he lands in the colony for which he is bound. Further than this our law cannot follow him, and after this point we can only provide indirectly for his welfare by such influence as we can bring to bear on the Government of the country in which he has established himself. That influence is, however, of a very substantial kind, and may be enforced in extreme cases by the prohibition of emigration. There is a provision enabling the Governor General in Council to prohibit emigration to any particular country on certain grounds which are specified in the Bill and which are as follows:—

'(a) that the plague or any other epidemic disease dangerous to human life has broken out in the country;

'(b) that the mortality among emigrants in the country is excessive;

'(c) that proper measures have not been taken for the protection of emigrants immediately on their arrival in the country or during their residence therein;

'(d) that the agreements made with emigrants, as such, before their departure from India are not duly enforced by the Government of the country; and

'(e) that the Governor General in Council, having, either directly or through the Secretary of State for India in Council, addressed the Government of the country with a view to obtain information regarding the condition or treatment of emigrants therein, has not within a reasonable time received the information asked for.'

"Such are the general provisions of this measure. The differences between the first draft of the Bill and that which is now before the Council are very fully and minutely explained in the Report of the Select Committee, and I need not dwell on them further. It will be observed that the original draft of the Bill conferred on the Government extensive powers to make rules, and that we have in the present draft carried this power still further, by eliminating certain matters of detail from the Bill, and leaving them to be provided for by rule. I am sure that a measure of this kind, if it is to work well, must be made elastic, and that any attempt to fix and stereotype minute administrative details will probably produce either inconvenience or absurdities. Let me illustrate this from the English Emigration Law, of the working of which I happen to have some knowledge. The English Emigration Acts, or Passenger Acts as they are called, regulate with minute particularity the 'dict' of the emigrant on board-ship, even condescending to prescribe the precise amount of pepper which is to be served out to each emigrant every day. They were framed in the days of sailing-ships, when a voyage across the Atlantic was a long business, for which a considerable supply of salt-meat and other like provisions had to be laid in. A few years ago it was accidentally discovered that the steamers of one of the principal Atlantic lines, the Cunard, I think, were in the habit of complying with the requirements of the law by taking so many junks of salt-beef on each voyage from Liverpool to New York—and back again. Of course, nobody wanted it, nobody ate it, but there it was to satisfy the law. It is matters of this kind that we wish to leave to be regulated by rules which can be easily changed on being found to be unnecessary or unsuitable. The new Act will not be brought into operation until the rules are ready, but I believe that this will not involve very long delay. I understand that Mr. Grierson, to whom I have so often referred, is now engaged, under the instructions of the Bengal Government, in the preparation of an Emigration Manual, which will contain, not only the revised rules and forms, but also such information as may be requisite for explaining the emigration-system to those who have to work it and those who are to be brought under it."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble KRISTODÁS PÁL said that the very full report of the Select Committee on this Bill, and the lucid statement made by the hon'ble member in charge of it, showed that it had received a careful revision at the hands of the Select Committee. It also evinced a benevolent solicitude on their part for the protection and welfare of the poor Native emigrant. The question of the policy of emigration was not before the Council, and he would not, therefore, touch upon it. But it might be well asked whether, when large tracts of land lay unreclaimed and uncultivated in many parts of the country, undue encouragement should be given to emigration to foreign countries; but, as far as he understood the Bill, it would not give undue encouragement to such emigration. If he had understood his hon'ble friend correctly, he understood him to say that the Government occupied a position of neutrality, giving fair play to all parties who would come under the operation of the Bill. That, he thought, was a fair position, but all that he, as a Native of the country, wished to see was that the labourer who hired himself to go to foreign parts should on the one hand be treated as a free agent, and on the other should be protected from fraud, misrepresentation and oppression; and, if the Bill should attain that object, he thought the Council would have no reason to complain. Following the principle of the Bill, he ventured to propose, with His Excellency's permission, a few small amendments. Care had been taken in the Bill to provide for the proper explanation to the intending emigrant of the nature of the agreement which he would be called upon to execute. He thought it was highly desirable that, in the initial stage of the engagement, the emigrant should have a clear idea of the nature of the life he was about to enter upon. As far as he could judge from the detailed provisions of the Bill, great precautions had been taken to explain fully to the intending emigrant the nature of the engagement. But at the most important moment, when he had to make up his mind, he was left almost in the dark. Section 26 of the Bill provided—

"The recruiter shall produce the statement for the information of every person whom he invites to emigrate, or when called upon to do so by any Magistrate or officer in charge of a police-station."

Now, it was well known to hon'ble members that the emigrant was often an ignorant, illiterate person, unable to read the statement produced before him, and, if he asked the recruiter to read it, that man, if he was inclined to deceive him, might read a version not contained in the statement itself. So that, at the most important moment, when an illiterate emigrant was called on to make up his mind, he would be almost entirely in the dark as to what the contents of the statement might be, as to the character of the agreement, and as to the nature of the life he would be called upon to lead. He thought that at this stage it was of the utmost importance that every facility should be given to him to understand the nature of his engagement; and in that view he proposed that the recruiter should be required to furnish the intending emigrant with a copy of the statement, so as to enable the emigrant to take it home to show to his friends and relatives, or the village-headmen, and consult them about it before making up his mind. He would be then in a position to know what he should do, and to understand the nature of the service required of him. He (RAÍ KRISTODÁS PÁL) had heard some objections taken to his proposal. In the first place, it had been said that it would impose extra cost on the Emigration Agent. He believed that the statement would be a printed paper and the additional cost would be a trifle; if a hundred copies of the statement were struck off, it would entail only the cost of the paper and printing. Then he was told that the recruiter would have to carry a heavy bag of paper. Now, he did not know the exact number of emigrants recruited in each district, or in each sub-division, nor had he any idea of the exact number of recruiters employed in each district; but he could not believe that a recruiter on the average engaged more than 100 recruits; and, supposing that he did engage 200, his bag would not be at all heavy if he had to carry some 200 papers of this kind. But, even if the recruiter was put to some slight inconvenience, he thought it a question for grave consideration whether the emigrant should not have a fair opportunity of considering the nature of the connection he was about to form at the very outset of his new career—and surely this was of far more importance than the question of a little heavier bag on the back of a recruiter. Then he was told that this provision was not necessary and would impose an obstacle in the way of emigration. He, for one, did not see how this would prove an obstacle in the way of emigration. The more intelligently and knowingly the emigrant acted, the better would it be for the cause of emigration. He was aware that in section 37 there was a provision that a copy of the agreement when executed should be furnished to the emigrant. Now, this was an after stage. After the agreement had been executed it would be too late for the emigrant to recede, supposing that he wanted to change his mind, and supposing that he came to know what he did not know before. He humbly conceived that the proposal which he had submitted to the Council was calculated to give the intending emigrant an opportunity to understand his real position before he made up his mind, and it was therefore of great practical importance. Upon these grounds, he would move that for sub-section (3) of section 26 the following sub-section be substituted:—

“(3) The recruiter shall give a true copy of the statement to every person whom he invites to emigrate, and shall produce the statement for the information of any Magistrate or officer in charge of a police-station when called upon to do so by the Magistrate or officer.”

The Hon'ble MR. QUINTON said: “While altogether sympathising in the anxiety of my hon'ble friend Raí Kristodás Pál Bahádúr that the intending emigrant should have full information as to the offers which the recruiter is authorised to make, and should not be led blindly into binding himself by a contract of such serious importance, I am unable to support the amendment.

“It appears to me that the provisions of the Bill are amply sufficient to secure the object we both have in view, and that the proposals of my hon'ble friend go far beyond what is reasonably required for that purpose.

“My hon'ble and learned friend Mr. Ilbert in his opening speech has pointed out that the recruiter under the Bill must be furnished with a written or printed statement, signed by the Emigration Agent and countersigned by the Protector of Emigrants, in English and in the Vernacular language of the local area to which the recruiter's license extends, of the terms which the recruiter is authorised to offer on behalf of the Agent to intending emigrants, and is also bound to produce the statement for the information of every person whom he invites to emigrate, or when called upon to do so by any Magistrate or officer in charge of a police-station.

“My hon'ble friend Raí Kristodás Pál is not satisfied with the production so enjoined, but would compel the recruiter to give to each person invited to emigrate a copy of the statement. Now, considering that probably not one per cent. of the persons likely to be so invited can read, this seems a very unnecessary precaution. The intending emigrant can procure full information as to the recruiter's offers, by having the statement read and explained to him when he reaches the depôt; and section 31, as we have heard, strictly enjoins on the Registering Officer the duty of examining the intending emigrant, apart from the recruiter, as to his competence and willingness to make the agreement, as to his comprehension of the nature of such agreement and as to his not having been induced to enter into it by unfair means. The Registering Officer must further draw up the agreement containing the particulars specified in the Bill, and furnish the emigrant with a copy of it. My hon'ble friend says that this will be too late; but, considering that the Registering Officer must ascertain from the emigrant that he understands and consents to the particulars contained in the agreement before it is drawn up, I do not see how this objection applies. He further urges that, if the man invited to emigrate gets a copy of the statement, he can take it home with him and consult the headman of his village; to which I would answer that so long as their present attitude towards emigration is maintained by zamindars, they are the last persons whom an intending emigrant would wish to consult.

"The story told by my hon'ble and learned friend of the salt beef carried from Liverpool to New York, and back again from New York to Liverpool, in order to comply with the English Passenger Acts, furnishes a warning against overloading our Bill with minute regulations. In my time I have registered, I suppose, several hundred emigrants, and the cases in which I have had to tell one to stand aside, because he did not know where he was going or what he was to get, were quite exceptional.

"When reading and writing become more widely diffused, and broad sides and hand-bills are likely to prove effective, the agencies will no doubt in their own interests readily adopt the latter; but, as things are at present, it appears to me unfair to impose on Agents and recruiters an obligation attended with considerable trouble and expense and enforceable by legal penalties, which is of no practical use.

"I may add that I have consulted my friend Major Pitcher, whose thorough acquaintance with the working of the recruiting system renders his opinion of great value, and that he fully concurs in the views I have expressed."

* The Hon'ble Mr. ILBERT said that, when the Hon'ble Rai Kristodás Pál first gave him private notice of this amendment, he expressed his entire sympathy with the object the hon'ble member had in view, namely, to give the fullest possible information to the intending emigrant of the kind of bargain he was about to enter into; and said that he would be willing to accept the amendment, unless it appeared that there was any objection to it on administrative grounds. On a question of this kind the opinions of a gentleman like Mr. Quinton, who had taken a practical part in the work of registering emigrants, and of Major Pitcher, were entitled to considerable weight; and he was bound to say, after having heard what his hon'ble friend Mr. Quinton had said, and after taking into consideration Major Pitcher's opinion, that his own view was that the amendment which had been proposed was on the whole likely to cause greater inconvenience than would be justified by any good which was likely to follow from it, and that the best way of giving an intending emigrant full information of the bargain he was about to make was to be found in that provision of the Bill which imposed on the registering officer the duty of ascertaining whether he really knew where he was going, and what was the kind of undertaking upon which he was about to enter. For these reasons only, Mr. ILBERT personally should vote against the amendment.

The Motion being put, the Council divided:—

Ayes.
The Hon'ble Amir Ali.
The Hon'ble Maharaja Luchmassur Singh,
Bahadur, of Darbhanga.
The Hon'ble Kristodás Pál.
The Hon'ble H. S. Thomas.
The Hon'ble Durgá Charan Lohá.
The Hon'ble W. W. Hunter.
The Hon'ble T. C. Hope.
The Hon'ble Sir S. C. Bayley.
His Excellency the President.

Noes.
The Hon'ble R. Miller.
The Hon'ble T. M. Gibbons.
The Hon'ble J. W. Quinton.
The Hon'ble H. J. Reynolds.
The Hon'ble Sir A. Colvin.
The Hon'ble C. P. Ilbert.
Lieutenant-General the Hon'ble T. F. Wilson.
The Hon'ble J. Gibbs.
His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief.

The numbers being equal, the President gave his casting vote with the ayes.

So the Motion was carried.

The Hon'ble RAÍ KRISTODÁS PÁL moved that in section 36, after the words "and term of service" the words "and the remuneration" be inserted. He said that his object in moving the amendment was this. When a man expatriated himself from his country for service in another country, he ought to know what he would earn there. The Bill gave him no information on that subject. It was true that the Bill provided for the passing of rules by Government, which, amongst other particulars, might include information as to the amount of wages; but he thought it was of the utmost importance that the Bill should specifically provide that the emigrant should be informed, even if approximately, of the wages he was to receive before he executed the agreement.

The Hon'ble MR. ILBERT said he was quite willing to accept this amendment. The Bill as originally drawn provided that the agreement should specify the daily or monthly wages the emigrant was to receive. But when the Select Committee came to consider how the form provided for the purpose should be filled up, they found great difficulty in cases in which the labourer was paid by the piece or the job, and accordingly they omitted the reference to wages, and merely provided that the agreement should provide the nature and terms of the service to be performed, and they intended that the information on this point should include, as far as possible, the remuneration he was to receive.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. ILBERT said that, with the permission of the Council, he would ask leave to move a small amendment in section 71 of the Bill. As he had not given notice of the amendment, he was entirely in the hands of the Council as to whether or not he should move it. The amendment was this, that in section 71, for the word "proceeding" the words "embarking at that port" be substituted. The Bill was framed on the assumption that all the emigrants who were to go by a particular emigrant-vessel would be shipped at the same port; but it had been brought to the notice of the Government that it might be convenient in some cases for a vessel proceeding from Calcutta to stop at Madras and ship emigrants there. So far as he could judge, none of the provisions of the Bill would prevent this being done. The only difficulty which he thought might arise was in connection with some of the terms of the certificate to be given under the Act. Section 71 required a certificate from the Protector of Emigrants and the Emigration Agent for the country to which the emigrants were to be conveyed, to the effect that they had, in respect of all the emigrants proceeding in the vessel, done all that was required by the provisions of the Act, or by the rules made under the Act, to be done by the Protector and Agent respectively; and a technical difficulty might arise as to compliance with this requirement of the law. Therefore, he proposed that the certificate should not be in respect of all the emigrants "proceeding in the vessel," but only in respect of the emigrants embarking at the port to which the Protector and Agent belonged.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble RAÍ KRISTODÁS PÁL moved that for clause (b) of section 83 the following clause shall be substituted:—

"(b) fails to give a true copy of the statement with which he is provided under section twenty-six to any person whom he invites to emigrate".

He said that, as the first amendment imposed an obligation on the recruiter, it was necessary that there should be a penalty attached if the obligation was not fulfilled.

The Hon'ble MR. ILBERT observed that he thought this amendment was a necessary consequence of the amendment which had already been carried, and he had, therefore, no objection to offer.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Mr. ILBERT moved that the Bill as amended be passed.

The Hon'ble Mr. AMIR ALI expressed the satisfaction which was felt among all classes of the Indian community with this measure. The hardships to which emigrants were subjected, and the false representations of which they were very frequently victims, made some such measure absolutely necessary; and he had no doubt that, when this measure was passed, it would be regarded as a great boon by the classes which it would affect. There was, however, one point regarding which he entertained considerable doubts, and these doubts, he should also add, were to some extent shared by some of the leading members of the Native community. The point to which he referred was as to the limit of age contained in section 39 of the Bill. He mentioned his views to the hon'ble and learned member in charge of the Bill, and he learned from him that the matter had received careful consideration in the Select Committee, and therefore he was constrained to come to the conclusion that he would not be justified in raising a discussion on it at the present stage of the Bill.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

RANGOON TRAMWAYS BILL.

The Hon'ble Mr. ILBERT also moved that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to authorize the making, and to regulate the working, of Street Tramways in Rangoon be taken into consideration. He said that this Bill was prepared for the purpose of giving effect to an agreement entered into between the municipality of Rangoon and Mr. Darwood, for the purpose of making street tramways in the town of Rangoon, on the understanding that all the roads were situated within municipal limits. But the Government had since been informed that part of one of these roads lay not within municipal limits but within the military cantonment. The simplest way to meet the difficulty, the Committee considered, was to add a section to the Bill providing that all the roads specified as roads over which tramways were to be constructed should, for the purposes of the Act and of the agreement, be deemed to be situate within the municipality, and they had accordingly added a section to that effect. The other amendments made by the Committee in the Bill were of a very trifling nature, and he need not allude to them.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Mr. ILBERT also moved that, in section 16, for clauses (b) and (c), the following be substituted, namely:—

"(b) does anything in such a manner as to obstruct any carriage using any such tramway; or

"(c) abets, within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code, the doing of anything mentioned in clause (a) or clause (b)."

He explained that the amendment was of a merely formal character.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Mr. ILBERT also moved that the Bill as amended be passed.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

SUNDRY BILLS.

The Hon'ble Mr. ILBERT also moved that the Hon'ble Mr. Gibbs' name be substituted for Sir S. Bayley's as a member of the Select Committees on the following Bills:—

To amend the law relating to Local Self-government in British Burma.

To amend the Legal Practitioners' Act, 1879, and the Indian Stamp Act, 1879.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

SUCCESSION CERTIFICATES BILL.

The Hon'ble Sir A. COLVIN moved that the Hon'ble Mr. Gibbs' name be substituted for Sir S. Bayley's as a member of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the law relating to certificates granted under Act XXVII of 1800 (an Act for facilitating the collection of debts on successions, and for the security of parties paying debts to the representatives of deceased persons).

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Friday, the 21st December, 1883.

QUIETING OF TITLES (PANJÁB) BILL.

The Hon'ble Mr. ILBERT moved for leave to introduce a Bill for the Quieting of Titles depending on Decisions passed on appeal by certain Settlement-officers in the Panjáb. He said that the object of the Bill was to remove doubts, which had been raised by a recent decision of the Panjáb Chief Court, as to whether certain Settlement-officers had been duly empowered to exercise appellate jurisdiction in suits and other proceedings relating to land-revenue.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

UNIVERSITIES HONORARY DEGREES BILL.

The Hon'ble Mr. GIBBS presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to authorize the Universities of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay to grant certain honorary degrees.

The Council adjourned to Friday, the 4th January, 1884.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

REPORTS ON THE STATE OF THE SEASONS AND PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS FOR THE WEEK ENDING THE 25th DECEMBER 1883.

GENERAL REMARKS.—Rain continues to fall generally in the districts of the Madras Presidency where harvesting of paddy, ragi, &c., is in progress and standing crops are in good condition, though partial injury has been done in one district by excessive rain.

There has been no rain in any other province except slight showers in Dharwar, Bombay Presidency, and Sandoway in British Burma. The ragi crops in three districts of the Bombay Presidency are suffering from blight, otherwise prospects are good. In Mysore rice is being harvested and standing crops promise well. In the Berars and Hyderabad cotton is being picked and the kharif harvested, and the weeding of ragi crops has commenced. Prospects continue fair in Central India and Rajputana, but cotton has suffered from frost in Ulwar, and rain is needed in that State. In the Panjab and the North-Western Provinces and Oudh the ragi crops on unirrigated lands require rain, but prospects are on the whole favourable. In the Central Provinces prospects are excellent.

In Bengal the outturn of the rice harvest is very poor and will, it is expected, fall short of the estimate even in Eastern Bengal and Orissa. The ragi has much benefited by the last showers, but more rain is much wanted. In British Burma the rice harvest is reported to be well advanced and the prospects generally excellent.

Cholera still lingers in the Southern Presidencies, and small-pox and fever are generally prevalent though not severe.

Prices continue to rule high in Bengal.
